Larry Redding comes home

By Perry Colmore

Larry Redding came home Tuesday afternoon. That's home as in out of hospitals, discharged from Northeast Rehabilitation Hospital in Salem, N.H., Home as in alive and still in this world, out of a coma, off life-support services, away from a drama in which his family had to debate if they'd pull the plug on their beloved husband, father and son.

More than 200 friends, family-members and neighbors lined Tilton Lane late Tuesday afternoon where the Reddings live, and watched while Mr. Redding got out of a white limousine at the top of his street and walked with a very large smile, into the crowd of cheering and crying well-wishers, to say hello to his supporters.

Larry Redding, who turned 51 years old April 14, is a living miracle. His story is one of hope, courage on the part of his family not to pull the plug, and a story of a family that knew how to rely on their faith.

A year and a half ago, patrolman Redding, a Wilmington police officer for 22 years, was injured when he was doing some firearms re-certifications with a gun called a Glock. Patrolman

Police officers cite management problems

By Don Staruk

Patrol officers and other employees of the Andover Police Department want changes made among and by the superior officers, the chief and town manager.

That is according to results of a survey conducted with about 65 members of the department, part of a diversity training seminar mandated in the settlement of a discrimination suit against the town.

"I think management needs to take a hard look at the comments by the people who are working for them and it's time they addressed some of them," Craig Poirier, patrolmen's union president, said Tuesday. "I think that's quite an accurate reflection on how the patrolmen feel."

"One side of the coin is, I was very happy to have the training, no matter how we got it," Chief James Johnson said Wednesday. "The other side of the coin is, after we look at this and some of the comments made, it's obvious that we have a problem."

But the chief downplayed the breadth of the problems stated in

News In Brief

Training is for shoreline surveying

Year two of the Shawsheen River "water quality initiative" has begun and more people are needed in North Andover, Lawrence and Andover. A shoreline survey training session will be held Tuesday, April 29, at the MRWC offices at 56 Island St., by the canal in Lawrence, from 7 to 9 p.m. The meeting will review the lower Shawsheen area and overall project purpose with area maps and charts. Stephen Lewis of Mass. Riverways Adopt-A-Steam program will train volunteers how to conduct shoreline surveys.

Stream teams are forming for the lower Shawsheen watershed, including Den Rock, Rogers Brook, Pomps Pond and Fosters Pond sections. More volunteers are needed to cover the many test sites and miles of meandering shoreline.

Community members can join or start a new team to survey, monitor, clean and protect streams in the Shawsheen watershed. Volunteers will survey shoreline, assess habitat and measure the local water temperature, dissolved oxygen, turbidity and bacteria levels. The findings will help guide future activity by local agencies, other community members and the Merrimack River Watershed Council.

Local officials can contribute knowledge about their local streams and any water quality priorities in their community, by attending the meeting and discussing concerns. Last year, the waters of Shawsheen failed to meet quality standards for designated uses, due to non-point sources of pollution. This volunteer project provides a forum to work on local solutions.

Local group opposes Dracut powerplant

The Quailcrest Homeowners Association (QHA) is forming a coalition of Andover residents and businesses to oppose the location of an American National Power Company power plant across the Merrimack River in Dracut.

The plant may have an adverse impact on the air and water quality in Andover.

The QHS is seeking individuals to serve as street or neighborhood representatives to the Coalition of Andover Residents for the Environment (CARE). These representatives will help disseminate information, circulate petitions and form letters and encourage attendance at Dracut meetings. Street reps will be welcome at CARE strategy sessions.

The QHA is also seeking individuals with expertise in environmental engineering and environmental law.

Despite bad blood, mediation talks continue on AHS

By Neil Fater

While they continue their verbal and written jabs at one another, the town and Stone-Congress, the contractor for the Andover High School construction project, are also continuing their efforts to agree to mediation.

Both sides have exchanged lists of people they would be willing to see mediate their much-publicized problems on the High School job, according to Stone Congress.

"To my latest knowledge, the lawyers late last week talked about potential mediators," Bill Nicholson, president of Congress Construction, one-half of Stone-Congress, said Tuesday. Buzz Stapczynski, town manager, was not available to confirm this.

Mr. Stapczynski was available last week to talk about Stone-Congress' latest claim that it deserves additional money for phase 3, the part of the project it is currently finishing.

trol its subs to make sure infield work was done by April 1," said Mr. Stapczynski. "Their energy should be spent finishing the job and not spinning the job."

Claim game

Stone-Congress' latest claim, for about $576,000, is outlined in a 56-page letter to the architect from Tom Silva, project manager for Stone-Congress. In the letter, Mr. Silva carefully details events at the site during phase 3 – the time-frame for the claim.

Mr. Silva compares finding problems in the documents to playing the Where's Waldo? game. In the general overview that serves as an introduction, Mr. Silva also compares the architect to someone attempting manslaughter on the project, and the town to an accomplice or a witness who withholds evidence.

"It would be much easier for us if we could simply point to a missing limb and state with some certainty that it had been lopped off with a machete by the

'We suffer the plight of a thousand penknife wounds.' – Tom Silva of Stone-Congress

As reported in last week's Townsman, the contractor said it believes it's entitled to another $576,000, because of problems during this phase. As a result, Stone-Congress has increased its lawsuit against the town and architect, Earl R. Flansburgh + Associates, to almost $2.3 million.

The contractor claims the architect's documents are faulty and incomplete and that the town is not doing enough to solve the problems

Regan Communications, a public relations firm, announced this latest claim to the media, and the firm has been handling Stone-Congress media dealings during the last few months.

"The architects are reviewing (the claim) and from my perspective, I find it unfortunate Stone-Congress has wasted this time and money having a public communications firm like Regan Communications when it should be spending its time to finish the job," said Mr. Stapczynski, when asked to comment on the claim.

The town manager said Stone-Congress should have made sure its subcontractors had all of the High School's playing fields in tip-top shape for the spring sports teams, but it did not.

"Stone-Congress couldn't contown and ERF&A. We cannot do this, our injuries are smaller, more frequent, and although less dramatic, are far more life threatening," writes Mr. Silva.

"We suffer the plight of a thousand penknife wounds, occasionally mixed with a slash from a paring, steak or butcher knife. When isolated and taken out of context, none of the wounds would be life threatening, in fact any single wound could be easily timely treated over the counter. The problem is there are multiple knife wounds inflicted on a daily basis, many of which are denied treatment, some treated months late, and still others totally mistreated causing even further harm.

"The result being that Stone-Congress is allowed to bleed out its coffers upon the floor while the town and ERF&A blissfully refuse to administer treatment, with ERF&A busily wiping blood from its knives, and the town denying all knowledge of both the attack and the injury, much less responsibility."

Mr. Nicholson, of Stone-Congress, admits such statements are hyperbole.

"But we believe in the claim. Hopefully we can resolve the problems," he said. "They're not going away."

Survey shows some problems in police department

the survey, saying that only a small portion of the 65 employees who took the training opted to make comments.

Collaborative Strategies, a Boston-based consulting firm, was hired to conduct diversity training for all members of the police department as mandated in last summer's settlement of the 1993 Laurence Hickman discrimination case. Officer Hickman, a nine-year veteran of the force and an African American, filed the discrimination suit in September 1993, claiming he was being unfairly disciplined by his supervisor, Sgt. James Hashem, because of race. He resigned a year later because of the discrimination and complete inaction by the department and the town to address the problem, he said at the time. He is now working for the Lowell police department.

Brief summaries of the questions on the diversity training seminar survey and some of the responses to them, were as follows (one respondent's answer unless otherwise noted).

Q. Recommendations for improvement?

- Do not consider second-in-command to replace chief (3);
- More leadership at top (2);
- Hold state-wide examination for position of chief, which would open exam to person of color and females (2);
- Shake up – remove top – bring in someone from the outside;
- Make top more accountable for their actions.
- Open door policy with chief and town manager – don't talk down to us, treat us as adults (4);
- Create trust environment (5);
- Change bully philosophy – "You don't like it, tough."
- Cut cliques by rotating shifts/manpower;
- Do a management study, not just a survey, interview employees;
- Develop community relations department. Outreach meetings (8);
- Weekly advice column in the newspaper with tips/advice from police to public, true stories of "good cops." (7);
- Positive press about department accomplishments (be proactive with media) (7).

Q. What concept was most valuable?

- Seeing who did not participate;
- Entire program should be directed at management.

Q. What was least valuable?

- Constant complaining by others;
- That the chief did not get it.

Q. What could make the program more successful?

- Talk to brass/town manger;
- Leadership should be mandated to implement what was presented;
- Touch on issue of Hispanics;
- Have those who refuse to participate leave the class (in peace);
- Separate management from others, get management to understand.

Q. General comments?

- Well done (16);
- Waste of taxpayers money;
- Cannot force a learned environment;
- Unnecessary program through town to hide from its responsibility to cover from future action;
- Frustrating because people involved were denying and wouldn't participate;
- Hope management "got it";
- You can't change everyone's thinking, but in time it will evolve.

Not related

Chief Johnson pointed out that many of the comments made had nothing to do with diversity issues.

They included:

- Breaks (during training should be) established ahead of time;
- Make (training classes) shorter;
- Equal rules for each division or department, i.e., dispatchers cannot eat at desk, others can;
- (Put) cable (television) in dispatch room;
- Dispatchers should be allowed to take marked or unmarked cruiser to get food.

Regarding cable television in the dispatch room, "It's not going to be in there," the chief said. "I don't even like them to read the newspaper" while they are working.

He doesn't want to see dispatchers eating at their desks, and doesn't expect that the public walking in the front door wants to see that either.

What now?

"The recommendations, for the most part, indicate a willingness to work together not only within the department, but with the community as well," one of the diversity training consultants who ran the seminar wrote in a note to Candace Hall, town personnel director. The consultant went on to say the consultants "believe that this could lead to an opportunity for change if the leadership is open and willing to listen to the suggestions."

But Chief Johnson said several of the suggestions refer to things that have either already been tried, are contradictory or are mandated by union contracts. Rotating shifts is an item controlled by the union contracts, he said. Holding statewide exams would open up the process, but would hinder promotion opportunities within the department, the subject of another complaint. Developing ties with the community through creation of youth groups and other activities is a great idea, but the town can't afford it because those involved expect to get paid time and a half, the chief said.

Catching car crooks, reducing refuse rates chief among Barry Finegold's tasks

By Neil Fater

People who register their cars out of state to avoid paying taxes, beware. The state may be coming after you.

As one of his main assignments during his first term, Barry Finegold, 17th Essex District representative, says he'll co-author a law aimed at catching those who try to avoid paying vehicle sales and excise tax.

This effort comes as a result of a bill sitting before Rep. Finegold's committee on taxation that was filed by the state's inspector general, Quincy's Robert Cerasoli.

Mr. Cerasoli's bill allows local authorities to use items such as mortgage information to establish a person's residency and thus catch those who try to avoid taxes by registering their vehicles out of state, said Rep. Finegold. "The purpose of this bill is simply, if you live in the state, pay the proper fees," he said.

Rep. Finegold said he'll co-write the law with Pittsfield's Rep. Peter Larkin, the taxation committee chairman. He estimates the state loses $300 million per year in sales and excise tax as a result of Baystate residents who buy and register their cars in other states.

"My issue is not raising taxes – which we didn't do. This is a way of saying to people, 'Pay your fair share,' " said Rep. Finegold.

He said writing this law and finding a way to lower the amount Andover will pay to dispose of its trash in coming years are the two largest issues he'll be recent retirement of Fire Chief Harold Hayes. When Chief Hayes retired last summer, Mr. Stapczynski was able to appoint an acting chief immediately, go through the search and interview process and hire the new chief, Harold Wright, all in about two and a half months.

Chief's position

"If that were a Civil Service position, I would have had an acting chief from mid-July 1996 probably through September of 1997," Mr. Stapczynski said. Having to wait for a chief's exam to be given takes at least four months, and then it takes several more months to get the results of that test. Under Civil Service, according to Mr. Stapczynski, a best case scenario would have allowed him to replace the chief in about eight months. Worst case would have been about 16 months.

Lt. Phillip Froburg, the number-two man at the police department and who may very well be one of those in line to succeed Chief Johnson, agrees that Civil Service has "never been known for expediency."

But, unlike the fire chief, the police chief's job at times involves more controversy. Having the position out of Civil Service may work if there is some sort of "just cause" clause in the contract to keep it out of local politics, he said. Chief Johnson agreed that the enforcement of laws should remain insulated from politics.

Both the chief and Lt. Froburg said it appeared that nobody at the police department was interested in keeping the Civil Service protection for the chief position. That is very different from many other communities. Newburyport's City Council voted down the same proposal last month after strong and much publicized opposition from its police patrolmen's union. The Andover patrolmen's union did not speak on the article.

Civil Service could have shielded the position to allow promotion from within the department or the state, whereas now the position can be advertised nationally.

On the other hand, not having some of the protection of Civil Service would make it easier to get rid of a chief who was not performing his duties, Lt. Froburg said, though he added that he doesn't think that is a concern in Andover.

Other retirement news

On a somewhat related note, the police department may be facing several retirements in the next three to four years. While Chief Johnson will be eligible for maximum retirement benefits in four years, he is joined in that regard by as many as 12 or 13 other officers who will be eligible to retire with maximum benefits between now and 2001.

The first of those will be Sgt. George Miller, who has notified the chief that he will retire this June. Patrolman Calvin Metcalf has also indicated he will retire next year, Chief Johnson said Tuesday.

Police chief position removed from Civil Service

By Don Staruk

Police Chief James Johnson was against it. Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski proposed it. But it was Town Meeting voters who approved taking the police chief's position out of Civil Service, opening the door for someone other than a police officer to be appointed chief.

During the third night of Town Meeting, last Wednesday, April 16, a majority of the 290 voters there approved Article 52, authorizing the town to ask the state Legislature to exempt the chief's position from civil service. "I was kind of unhappy to see it come out. I think it leaves it open for the job to be political," Chief Johnson said this week.

The current chief is not affected by the vote, since his is a Civil Service appointment, and Chief Johnson said he has no intention of retiring just yet.

"At this point in time I have no plan to retire. I haven't set any date," the chief said.

The chief is 54 years old and has 28 years of service, so he could retire next year, once he turns 55. But he will qualify for maximum retirement benefits in just four years and it is likely he will stick it out at least that long. Should he choose to stay, he will eventually have to retire in 11 years, when he turns 65.

Mr. Stapczynski proposed the change, saying taking the position out of Civil Service will speed up the process of replacing the chief when he does retire. He compared it to the

FAMILY DOWN PAYMENT LOANS APPROVED

Recent action by the U.S. Congress bill benefit family members who want to lend money to relatives for the down payment on a house–and even allows them to charge interest on the loan! Prior to this legislation, only monetary "gifts" could be made for down payments on federally-insured mortgages, and the lender could not legally ask for repayment. Such regulations forced a lot of people to fudge on loan applications or avoid helping their relatives altogether.

If parents or grandparents want to lend their children a sum of money to help with the down payment on an FHA mortgage on their first home, they can lend the money interest-free or create a note–with interest in the form of a second mortgage or deed of trust secured by the new house.

The financial arrangements are entirely up to the parties involved. If the borrowers are initially not able to make their mortgage payment and repay the loan, they could make arrangements to make no payments or pay only the interest for a specified period or make other arrangements.

Police survey

"My door's always open. Show me one person who's not been able to get in here," the chief said. He said he has had a suggestion box up for 15 years and "week after week it is empty."

"I expected to have a few hits against myself, the same with (Lt.) Phil (Froburg, operations commander and second in command at the department), the same with Buzz," the chief said.

Report held

Though the results of the survey have been known to the town manager since February, they were not distributed to members of the department, despite requests from the patrolmen and superior officers, until they were requested by the Townsman last Thursday. A copy was sent to both groups and the Townsman Friday.

"I wouldn't exactly call it a report. But I am awaiting a report," Mr. Stapczynski said when first asked for the information last week. "I'd consider that not public. I'd consider that just a draft report."

He said he would check with town counsel before releasing anything.

"I'm going to do what I'm advised by counsel, because I consider it an internal document," Mr. Stapczynski said.

In a note sent with a copy of the survey results Friday, Mr. Stapczynski said, "Having reviewed this material with the personnel director, she informs me that this is the only written report we will receive from the consultant."

No mention was made of a March 7 meeting with the consultant that was mentioned in the letter from the consultant to Candace Hall, personnel director.

Chief Johnson said he also had not received the report until last Friday and had only scanned it by this week. He said he has not had a chance to discuss the findings with Mr. Stapczynski.

"He hasn't discussed it at all with me," the chief said. "We'll have to see what the manager has in mind for this. Until I hear from him, I couldn't tell you which way we're going to work on it. He's the one who arranged it. But I think anytime you have somebody come in from the outside it is healthy."

involved with, now that budget discussions have concluded.

"As a freshman, you're limited to what you can get done," he said.

Although expensive trash is not an issue that grabs the public's attention, local officials are concerned the price towns pay to dispose of trash will skyrocket during the upcoming years because of agreements made with the North East Solid Waste Committee (NESWC).

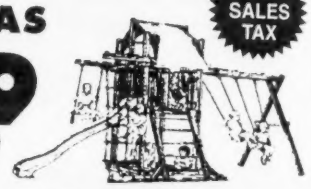

Andover is currently paying twice the state average to dispose of its garbage and Rep. Finegold said it will pay four times the average in three or four years.

"Think about the numbers. That could be $360,000 in increases over what we're paying now," he said. "It really hurts you. If people would understand it they'd really be up in arms because you're really throwing money away."

As co-chair of a cost-of-trash caucus with state Senator Bruce Tarr, Rep. Finegold said he will study this issue and look for ways the state can help communities such as Andover.

"That's the sleeping-giant issue for this town," said Rep. Finegold. "I'm very concerned about it, which is why I'm fighting so hard to get the town some relief."

Although he does not expect Andover to receive state assistance this year, Rep. Finegold said he believes there may be $80,000 to $100,000 in the state's deficiency budget that might be available to Andover for fiscal year 1998.

Rep. Finegold sees extra money, changes coming to schools

By Neil Fater

The state plans to beef up the Andover schools budget approved by Town Meeting last week, says Barry Finegold, state representative for seven of Andover's eight districts.

The Massachusetts House has finished its budget, and Rep. Finegold said he believes the Senate and the governor will all agree on the same figures.

Rep. Finegold said Andover will receive nearly $3.25 million in Chapter 70 money for the schools, an increase of more than $410,000 compared to last year.

Andover will also receive nearly $1.3 million in lottery distribution monies.

Although Dick Neal, superintendent, and Bernie Tuttle, schools business manager, were unavailable for comment, Rep. Finegold said the nearly $3.25 million for schools is considerably more than the schools planned to receive when officials created the schools' $31.1 million budget.

"The question is, if you've projected low what happens when you get a windfall of money? It's a very good sign that economy is healthy in the state," said Rep. Finegold. "In the early '90s the local aid numbers were low. I'm personally proud of the priority we've made."

Besides receiving the Chapter 70 money, Andover's school system will also collect $15,880 to help pay for special education students the town must send to other schools.

The cost of special education has increased dramatically in Andover and many other communities throughout the state during the last few years. Special education accounted for 19 percent of the school budget approved by Town Meeting last week. The equivalent of more than four new teachers and five new assistants will be hired with this money, according to the schools.

> 'It's going to be more stringent to see who gets special education and who doesn't.'
> Rep. Barry Finegold

Rep. Finegold said the state Legislature has made education a priority and he expects members to focus on changing the requirements regarding who qualifies as a special education student.

"It's going to be more stringent to see who gets special education and who doesn't," said Rep. Finegold. "I think the big issue is who gets into special education. I applaud Massachusetts for being one of the first commonwealths to take on the issue with Chapter 766, but I think there does have to be some type of reform."

As the son of a 25-year special education teacher, Rep. Finegold said he understands the importance of special education "but we do have to look at costs," he said.

"I think (reform) is coming. They're still studying the issue. It could be anywhere from six months to a year to two years," said Rep. Finegold.

Settling in

With his first budget now behind him, Rep. Finegold seemed pleased with the money that will be available for Andover.

"It's better to get more than expected, than less than expected and have (Andover officials) yelling at me," he said simply.

The new representative indicated he's adjusting to the realities of being a first-year member of the state legislature.

"You think it's hard getting along with four other selectmen, try getting along with 160 other members," said Rep. Finegold. "And the process is so complicated. If I wanted to get something done before, I just had to make four other phone calls. Now, I have to make 81."

RECYCLING

The town of Andover has received $17,485 as part of a state-sponsored recycling grant provided to the North East Solid Waste Committee (NESWC). Andover's award is part of a $400,000 state grant to support recycling in NESWC communities.

NESWC Executive Director Steven M. Rothstein said, "These funds will help support Andover's recycling programs. Thanks to the assistance of State Senator John O'Brien and State representatives Barry R. Finegold and Edward A. LeLacheur, the state environmental agencies and Andover officials, some of the costs of recycling will be offset as a result of this grant program."

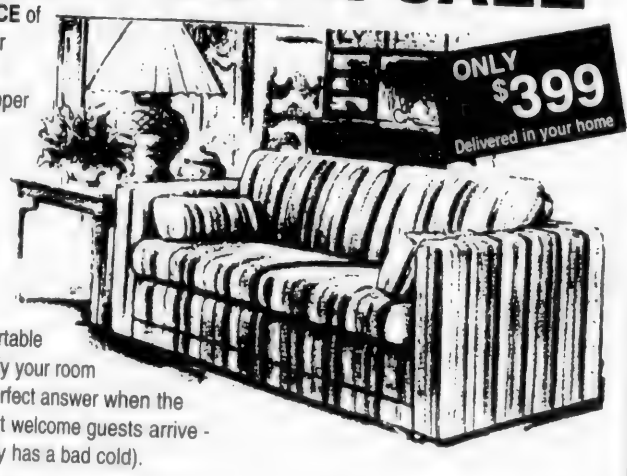

Andover and other NESWC communities face a unique challenge concerning their desire to recycle and help the Commonwealth reach its goal of recycling 46 percent of municipal solid waste by the year 2000. As a result of a state-sponsored 20-year contract with a waste-to-energy facility in North Andover, NESWC communities are forced to pay for a certain amount of trash or Guaranteed Annual Tonnage (GAT). "Each ton that is recycled that takes a community below their GAT amount incurs a double cost – the actual cost of recycling and the cost of delivering a 'phantom ton' to the North Andover facility. This costs NESWC communities millions of dollars annually," said Robert Moroney, chairman of the NESWC board of directors and public works director in the town of Manchester.

The GAT Recycling Assistance Program is funded by the Legislature from the Clean Environment Fund which was created to use unclaimed bottle deposits to support recycling related programs. "NESWC appreciates this financial support from the Commonwealth to help Andover officials and residents increase recycling," Mr. Rothstein said.

Mr. Magnet electrifies West Elementary students

By Arleen Jaracz
West Elementary PTO

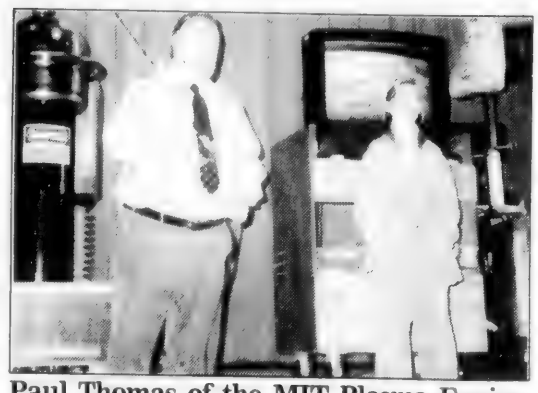

West Elementary students recently took a hands-on approach to performing science experiments in magnetism and electricity through a Massachusetts Institute of Technology outreach program known as "Mr. Magnet." Hands were flying as students in grades 3-5 volunteered to assist in performing experiments with MIT technical supervisor Paul Thomas, a.k.a. "Mr. Magnet." Magnets are part of his work at the MIT Plasma Fusion Center, where he designs environmental restoration equipment.

Mr. Thomas is best known for his "Welcome to my Laboratory" program, where he brings a truckload of entertaining experiments to elementary schools. "I enjoy my job in the lab because I can work with machines and have fun. I think the most fun job you can have is to take different things and make them work," Mr. Thomas told the students as he began lively experiments demonstrating the principles of magnetism, electrostatics, and the interaction of electrical currents in a magnetic field.

During three one-hour programs at West Elementary, Mr. Thomas specifically addressed the need for more girls to develop an interest in science. This MIT program is trying to reverse a trend that finds many American students trailing behind in math and science skills, compared with other nations. MIT's vision is to raise the conscience level and awareness of teachers and boards of education about the need for change to improve science education in our schools. It is MIT's belief that "an understanding of science will make it possible for today's students to make decisions in a highly technical world and to compete in a global economy."

The auditorium took on the appearance of a well-equipped science laboratory with Mr. Magnet's equipment, including giant magnets, generators, and a 1-million volt Van de Graaff Electrostatic Generator. Students eagerly volunteered to participate in the experiments. Vincent Matera, Cliff Gange, and Laura Dukeshire found it fun that they could create enough electricity by cranking a generator to light multiple light bulbs. Carolyn Miller and several classmates used The Boomer to create a magnetic impulse that produced a loud bang and made fistfuls of Cheerios fly into the air. The students squealed with delight as Brittany Musselman and Doug Powers created lightning and crackles through static electricity from the Van de Graaff generator. When Rice Krispies were poured onto the machine, cereal fell from the sky. The students enjoyed the program,

SCHOOLTALK

This weekend, beginning April 25, is cultural-immersion time for 54 Pike School eighth-graders and their teachers. The youngsters are traveling to either New York City, Quebec City or Boston with their Spanish, French and art teachers.

French students board a bus for Canada at 7 a.m. tomorrow, Friday, to practice their language skills in a European-like city. After arriving at the Chateau Frontenac Hotel and doing some informal sightseeing, the eighth-graders will spend the evening with a troupe of professional actors in skits designed to acquaint visitors with the history of Quebec City. Saturday will include a tour of the city and an afternoon treasure hunt, requiring students to work in pairs while traveling throughout the city and using their knowledge of French to ask questions of the natives. A program of events and lunch are scheduled for Sunday before the return to Pike.

Spanish students also will leave early Friday morning for New York City, where they will visit the Museum of Natural History to see an exhibit about the people of Mexico. On Saturday the students will visit the Hispanic Society of America, a museum featuring works of Spain's greatest painters, and touring Manhattan. On Sunday they will tour the Statue of Liberty and Ellis Island before boarding the bus to return to Andover.

A dozen eighth-graders have opted for an arts day in Boston on Friday. They will spend the morning in the impressionist galleries at the Museum of Fine Arts looking and sketching to complete work they have done with their art teacher. Another assignment will complement the studio photography work these students have done and will take them to Quincy Market for an afternoon photo shoot.

The Spanish and French trips are open to all eighth-graders studying those languages.

As a community-building effort celebrating the completion of its 25th anniversary year, United Way of Merrimack Valley is offering youth a chance to address community needs. Based upon ideas submitted by students in grades 4-6 in its "People Helping People" youth initiative, United Way plans to award 10 $500 community grants across northeastern Massachusetts and southern New Hampshire, two of them in the Greater Lawrence area including Andover, North Andover, and Methuen. Funding is sponsored by United Way and area businesses.

Aside from gaining pride in directing funds to help a good cause, youth whose entries are selected for funding will receive public recognition and United Way's "Good Community Citizen" trophy.

The writing option requires a 12-page story about an important community need and how the $500 award would help. The illustration option requires the use of crayons or markers to draw a picture on a white 8½-x-11-inch sheet of paper, illustrating how a $500 grant would help the community and including a short statement describing the idea.

Teachers at Sanborn, South and West Middle and in other schools in surrounding towns are facilitating the initiative. Local youth organizations including Boy Scouts, Girls Scouts, Girls Inc., Y's and Boys Clubs are also promoting the opportunity. United Way is providing participating teachers and group leaders a curriculum outline and resource list to develop a lesson on community service to help students with entry ideas. United Way hopes the project will add future benefit to the community as it sets the stage for youth to take an interest in community service.

Entries are due Friday, May 2, to participating organizations or United Way, P.O. Box 527, Lawrence, Mass. 01842. Community volunteers will judge entries on impact, creativity, clarity and appearance. Announcement of winning entries will be made at United Way's annual meeting June 13.

Entry forms are available at the Memorial Hall Library or by calling Kathi Geisler at United Way at 682-5296.

ScienceQuest win sends 5th-grader to Disney World

"I just won the ScienceQuest, and now I'm going to Disney World."

That's what 11-year-old Stephen Draheim of Andover did after he won the grand prize in the first annual Learning Express Science quiz, ScienceQuest.

The contest drew kids in fourth and fifth grades to the various Learning Express stores one Saturday morning in February.

The winners at each location were entered into a drawing for the grand prize, a family trip for four to Disney World and Kennedy Space Center.

The fifth-grader took first place at the Andover Learning Express, after answering science questions in several rounds of competition.

The questions from school textbooks and other science books geared to the specific age group included astronomy, geology, paleontology, zoology, geology, chemistry and physics.

Stephen, his brother, Michael, 8, and mother and father, Nancy and Tom Draheim, traveled to Orlando, Fla., in March.

The trip included hotel accommodations, car rental and passes to Disney World and Kennedy Space Center.

"We were so excited," said Nancy Draheim. "And the trip was wonderful. We really had a great time."

The Andover store, located at 32 Park St., is owned by Chip and Joyce Will.

WEST ELEMENTARY READERS & WRITERS CONFERENCE

◀ Giles LaRoche, an illustrator known for his elaborate, colorful sculptures and paper collages, shared his art talents with West Elementary students in grades 3 and 4. His art form has been used in illustrating children's books. Mr. LaRoche showed how children can make stories come to life through art.

The second annual West Elementary Readers and Writers Conference (W.E.R.A.W.C., or "we rock") took place last month. Third-graders Michelle Amirault (left), Maggie Matera (center) and Karyn Gray (in back) listen to Giles LaRoche talk about becoming a storybook artist.

Grades 1 and 2 joined Brian Lies, children's picture-book illustrator, in playing an author/illustration game. He shared what led him to write and illustrate children's books such as Hamlet (above, right).

◀ Maura Wittbold, a senior at Brooks School, hugs her sister, Allison, a fifth-grader in Charlotte Lynch's class. Maura also had Ms. Lynch, in the same classroom at West. Maura was visiting the school during the closing performance. Their mother, Maureen Wittbold, was one of the participating authors.

◀ Mike Gibson, vice president of the West student council, and Mallory Jaracz, president, were W.E.R.A.W.C. hosts at the week's closing ceremonies. During the finale, all of the students were able to show their teachers and parents what they had learned from all of the writers and illustrators they met during the week-long event.

Author Ted Murphy attended the final day of W.E.R.A.W.C. Writers Maureen Wittbold and Jeffrey Kelly (both of Andover), Lucinda Landon and Alexandra White, storyteller Jo-Ann Wangh, songwriter Rebecca Golden, and Deborah Costline and Lenny Gerwick with The Gerwick Puppets were also featured at the conference.

Sanborn students 'celebrate' 3rd annual TV Turn-off Week

Sanborn students and their families are heading to the library to stock up on books for their week-long vacation from television. During the last two annual TV Turn-off weeks, more than 500 students survived without television. Many enjoyed it; others found it a challenge, but felt a sense of satisfaction in their accomplishment. Many family members participate each year and spend more time reading, socializing, being outdoors, and getting things done.

TV-Free America, a national non-profit organization, is coordinating turnoffs around the country during the week of April 24-30. Because it occurs during spring school vacation week, Sanborn is holding their event April 28-May 4.

TV-Free America encourages Americans to reduce the amount of television they watch, to promote more connected lives, families, and communities.

FINANCIAL STRATEGIES

American Express Financial Advisors

MANAGING YOUR MONEY IN RETIREMENT

You may already be taking steps to save and invest for your retirement. But once you actually retire, you still need to do some serious financial planning if you're going to enjoy the type of lifestyle you want.

Fortunately, there's a lot you can do. You can start by considering the three main sources of income you'll probably have in your retirement years: Social Security, private pensions and investments.

Social Security — As a retiree, you'll have to decide exactly when you should start collecting your Social Security. The biggest factors in making this decision are your current age, your work status and your other sources of income.

If you are now 58 or order, you can begin receiving your Social Security checks when you are 62, but you'll receive only 80 percent of the money you would get if you were to wait until you reach 65. You can also delay receiving your benefits until you turn 70, when your credits will reach their maximum.

There are basically two schools of thought regarding the optimal time for taking Social Security. Some financial advisors say that, unless you're in poor health or you really need the money, you should wait until you're at least 65 before you start collecting, to maximize your Social Security dollars to cope with inflation and to accommodate today's longer life expectancies. However, others say that you can't really know what the future holds, and that it takes a long time to compensate for the benefits not received between 62 and 54, so you should start collecting Social Security as soon as you can.

Complicating the situation is your work status. If you're between 62 and 65, your Social Security benefits will be cut $1 for every $2 you earn above $8,280. If you're between 65 and 69, you'll lose $1 for every $3 you earn above $12,500. Once you're 70, though, you're home free; you can work as much as you want without losing any Social Security benefits. If you can afford to do without Social Security for those years, and you really like to work, then waiting until 70 may be the best option.

Pension choices — If you have worked for 40 or more years, you may have participated in a "defined benefit plan." This type of pension plan is much less common today, having been largely replaced by "defined contribution plans," which determine pension amounts by how much is invested and how this money grows. But if you have a defined benefit plan, then you will receive a fixed benefit upon retirement, a benefit based on your final salary, the time you've spent on the job, and your age.

Investments — Hopefully, you've been saving and investing for your retirement, and not relying solely on Social Security and a company pension. If you have invested regularly, then your biggest question is how to structure your investment portfolio to make it last as long as possible. Should you keep most of your money in stocks, which have historically provided the greatest return, but also carry the most risk? Or should you shift the bulk of your funds into safer, lower-yielding vehicles, such as CDs or money market accounts?

The answer depends on your personal risk tolerance—the amount of investment risk you are comfortable with. If you feel you just can't afford much risk at all, then you might want to reduce the percentage of stocks you own. On the other hand, you will need to own some stocks, because fixed-rate investments may not keep pace with inflation, which, over time, can seriously eat away at your purchasing power.

Obviously, you'll have to put a great deal of thought in how you should adjust your investment portfolio when you retire. You might want to consult a professional financial advisor for assistance; he or she can help you take a look at how your investments fit into your complete financial picture.

To thoroughly review and understand all available options, call me at (617) 242-0700 x228 today and schedule a complimentary consultation; and pick up a copy of my newsletter while visiting either of the Perfecto's Cafe locations in Andover and North Andover.

The South Elementary fifth-grade girls Odyssey of the Mind team took first place at the April 12 Odyssey of the Mind State Finals in Worcester, and advanced to the World Finals. Allison Abreu, Laura Marie Cancro, Alexandra Earnley, Jeanne Lothrop, Jennifer Mason, Katherine Ting, and Lea Ventura, fifth-grade students at South, and their coach, Maryellen Abreu, presented their solution to the Classics problem "Can You Dig It?" with creative acting and accuracy. This problem asked participants to delve into the worlds of archeology and ancient civilization. During the course of the year, the team studied the ancient Mayan culture of Central America. In the solution to their problem, the girls depicted the Maya taking part in an ancient coming-of-age ritual and then flashed forward to a modern-day scene in which archeologists discover artifacts from that ritual. All the team members worked long hours to create imaginative props (such as an erupting volcano and an ancient Mayan "stargazer") with elaborate costumes including authentic Mayan hieroglyphs. The students wove an element of humor into their story, with a senile grandmother who appears from beneath a sacred drum, and a ditzy archeologist who lacks respect for the excavation process in the modern scene.

The South Elementary fifth-grade girls Odyssey of the Mind team.

With the help of their strong scores in the spontaneous portion of the competition, the girls took first place in Division 1, advancing to the World Finals, held at the University of Maryland June 3-5. This team will represent all of Massachusetts for their problem, in Division 1.

These second-graders from Shawsheen School (below) participated in the Odyssey of the Mind program. Their answer to the question, "The Good News," won them an Odyssey of the Mind special achievement award for carrying their humorous theme throughout the skit. They visited WBZ-TV/Channel 4 News and met with sportscaster Bob Lobel and anchor Kasey Kaufman recently to see how a real news station works. They were allowed to stay throughout the entire taping of the news.

'Ribbon of Hope' – Playing to win

Winning isn't everything – or is it? It is, according to four local women who have organized an entertaining way to win the fight against breast cancer. In a few short months, Linda Infurna, Elizabeth Terlizzi, Maureen Cannava and Arlene Santangelo have created "Ribbon of Hope," the first annual women's golf tournament for breast cancer research.

Ms. Terlizzi and Ms. Infurna got the idea, which then received support from sponsors, the community and players. The May 5 event at Indian Ridge Country Club will conclude with an awards dinner and a brief presentation by Perry Colmore, editor of the Andover Townsman, author of Living with Breast Cancer, and a two-time breast cancer survivor. Though the response from golfers has already closed registration, the committee will continue to accept names of players who would like to be placed on the mailing list for next year's tournament. To contribute to this year's tournament, or to register to receive future mailings, call Kerry Ellen Enright at the American Cancer Society at (508) 988-3600.

Happy 1st Birthday photos will be published in next week's edition

Armenian group to host Genocide play

A commemorative event for the 82nd anniversary of the Armenian Genocide, sponsored by the Armenian Genocide Commemorative Committee of the Merrimack Valley, will take place at 7 p.m. this Saturday, April 26, at Doherty Middle School, Bartlet Street.

During the program, "Reflections of the Genocide," a presentation of the Off-Broadway play Mirrors, written and directed by Dr. Herand Markarian, will be staged by the theater group of the Armenian Cultural Society's New York Chapter. The production features three diverse characters in search of lost identities, a "nonexisting past" and the tortuous longings of a lonely amnesiac.

The 82nd anniversary is being planned jointly by individuals from different churches and organizations around the phrase "Remembrance, Renewal, Resolve – We Shall Survive."

"The year 1915 stands out as the darkest year in the long and turbulent history of the Armenian people – 2.5 million Armenians were victims of wholesale massacre and deportation by the Ottoman Turks," according to organizers.

Currently, bloodshed and ethnic strife has been taking place for seven years in Karabagh against Azerbaijan, they said.

Tickets are $15 and may be purchased by calling Tom Vartabedian at (508) 373-1654; Albert Movsesian at 685-2577; Sossy Jeknavorian at (508) 256-2538; or Aram Jeknavorian at (603) 635-7451.

Net proceeds will be donated to a worthy cause in Armenia, organizers said.

The cast includes Greg Brennan, J.P. Sarni, Janine Givens, Pat McCandless, Lisa Mueller, T.J. Witham, Lindsey Strube, Meredith Affleck, Sarah Ruderman, Christine Ghiloni, Nicole Hajj, Brian LaCroix, Charlotte Chanler, Jen Powers, Meghan Woo, Chris Desjardins, Mike Beliveau, Lisa DiVencenzo, Julie Hayner, Chris Parsons, Tony Beliveau, Jeff Arleque, Beth Carriere, Jenny Detterman and Susie Moffitt.

Your Dental HEALTH

by Richard D. Hopgood, D.M.D.

NO MOUTHWASH RISK

Patients who are scrupulous about their oral hygiene may have worried in 1992 when a study conducted by the National Cancer Institute reported a link between the alcohol in mouthwash and an increased incidence of oral cancer. Now, thanks to the work of an advisory panel working for the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, this concern has been dismissed. This is an important finding because non prescription mouthwashes that are high in alcohol content happen to be the most effective in combating plaque and gingivitis. As for rinses that are either lower in alcohol content or are alcohol-free, their effectiveness in this regard is either unproved or less than that of high-alcohol formulas. Alcohol in mouthwash acts as a solvent for the active ingredients.

Our purpose in presenting this column is to exhibit the virtues of professional care and trustworthiness in achieving and maintaining a natural, vibrant smile. Through communication, compassionate concern, and a combination of proven techniques and innovative technology within a warm, positive environment, we attempt to move our patients toward an optimum state of oral health. We're located at 296 Lowell Street, Rt 133, with easy access off Rt 93, where we offer a full range of dental services for the entire family. PH: 475-2431.

P.S. It should be noted that mouthwashes with high alcohol content may aggravate existing dry mouth and inflammations.

Barenboim: 'Change is good'

stale. You get tired of listening to the same people and the same issues. I'm not taking anything away from others. I just feel change is good."

Missed opportunities

Mr. Barenboim was asked about missed opportunities.

"I don't know. There were a lot of people who said we should have bought the Andover Companies building" on North Main Street, for a new police station. "But it's a missed opportunity only if we could have afforded it. When we went and looked at it, I for one didn't think the price was feasible."

Depending on who you asked and when, the price for the property was somewhere between $4 million and $11 million, he said. And it still would have needed renovations.

The watchdogs

Mr. Barenboim said the town watchdogs, those citizens who keep a close eye on the goings on at town offices, serve a useful purpose to the rest of the townspeople. When he first started, Ken Mahony was town manager and there were probably 20 full-time watchdogs, Mr. Barenboim said, because Mr. Mahony got people riled up.

"I think it's a great credit to the current Board of Selectmen and the town manager that 17 of the 20 watchdogs no longer felt they need to come and make sure the town is being run on the up-and-up."

Those who take on the watchdog role offer many ideas and are usually well received by the board, he said.

Town manager

Mr. Mahony was autocratic in his management style, and when he left in 1990, selectmen were looking to replace him with more of a consensus builder. They did that with Buzz Stapczynski, he said.

"There's no question our number-one priority was to choose a person who was a people-person, and we certainly got a person who was much more willing to be respectful and responsive to every citizen in town.

"Buzz certainly feels the pressure from the townspeople that the High School project gets finished as quickly as possible without more cost overruns. He knows he's being watched carefully to see how it ends up, and when you're the person who's overseeing the whole project, you know that if it doesn't go well you're job could be on the line."

The press

"I think that overall, the press over the years handled the board's meetings well – very fair and accurate," he said. "There's no question that I can be outspoken," so when there was an article or two that he didn't think were handled well, he had no problem letting the reporter or editor know about it.

Executive sessions

The executive sessions are truly used for the reasons stated – negotiations, personnel issues, etc., Mr. Barenboim said. Although sometimes it appears decisions are a done deal before selectmen get to their seats in the meeting, Mr. Barenboim said there are no illegal meetings or discussions taking place. The fact that members may go into the manager's office and hang up their coats together does not indicate wrongdoing.

James Barenboim said the job of a selectman takes 10-15 hours a week, depending on the time of year. Would he recommend it? – "Absolutely."

James Barenboim campaigning in March, 1991.

James Barenboim and Barry Finegold shake hands during a November, 1996 selectmen's meeting.

"I'm not going to tell you that we don't discuss town business... but never was a vote taken in that room."

What is more likely to occur is a one-on-one discussion to discern the flavor of an issue or to see in which direction a board member might be leaning. Mr. Barenboim said these took place during the week when he might run into another board member, or through phone calls to one or another member. They even took place as they were walking into a meeting.

"So it's no big secret when I get to the meeting and we vote right away," he said. "But let me tell you this – I've gone into many more meetings when I thought I knew where the board members were headed and had them go the opposite way."

Rep. Barry Finegold

"I was rough on him," Mr. Barenboim said of his treatment of now Rep. Barry Finegold during Mr. Finegold's almost two-year stint on the board.

When Mr. Finegold first came on the board, Mr. Barenboim felt he wasn't doing his homework, he said.

"So there were times he would say things that would frustrate me. But he learned very quickly to do his homework, and maybe some of that happened because I was rough on him in the beginning," he said.

He said there were many times he thought Rep. Finegold was using his selectman's position to further his political career when his focus should have been more on being a selectman.

Any regrets?

"I've enjoyed all nine years. It was a lot of fun. I learned a lot and it was a great experience. I met a lot of people."

He was lucky enough, he said, to meet President Bush three times, including twice while in his role as selectman.

"I think that if I didn't do anything else on the Board of Selectmen, many have said... they enjoyed the "common-sense approach" that I brought to the board. Sometimes we think too much, and if you just have a little common sense it can make Andover a better place to live."

Key point

"Many, many citizens have a misconception that people who work for town government are not of the same caliber of people who work in private industry, and the most pleasant thing that I found in my nine years is that the caliber of the town employees that we have is superb. The rest of the townspeople should be thankful for the town employees we have, and they could work in private industry in a shine. We really have some top-notch people. I sometimes wonder why they work for the town."

Future plans

"I have every intention of spending more time with my family – making up for a lot of the night meetings."

His oldest daughter will be going away to college in about a year.

Not necessarily born to build

More than 10 years ago, long before he was elected to the Board of Selectmen, Mr. Barenboim and his wife, Maureen, were living on Oriole Drive and looking for a new home. They looked at many and didn't see the perfect house for them. They decided to buy a lot and build a home, and one day Mr. Barenboim drove down Poor Street and saw the for-sale sign on "the old Todd Estate," and it came "with acreage." That acreage turned out to be 12.5 acres bordering Hussey's Pond.

He had planned to build just the one house, and hadn't thought about doing much else until he received a call from then town manager Ken Mahony, asking about his plans. At the time, towns were under a lot of pressure to build affordable and multifamily housing. Brookside Estates and Abbot Pond Condominiums were built at about this time. Mr. Mahony wanted Mr. Barenboim to consider building such a development on his 12.5 acres. It was on water and sewer, the bus line and close to amenities. But the land was zoned residential and to rezone to apartment zoning needed a two-thirds vote at town meeting, and that had never been done.

"But the Planning Board and town manager thought that it was the right piece of land. I said I'd take a chance and do it," Mr. Barenboim said.

Mr. Barenboim carried the plans for a 27-unit condominium complex through all the board approvals, then, in about 1985, sold the development to a builder to do the actual construction.

"I also gave him a list – I had it all pre-sold."

Then he and Maureen bought a couple of lots on Bateson Drive, which her father was developing, and built the house they still live in today.

Mr. Barenboim also owned and still owns a piece of commercial property on Andover Street, the building that formerly housed John's Deli and, more recently, Mr. Whippy's ice cream and Ultimate Salon.

While in office, Mr. Barenboim opted to avoid getting involved in any more development.

"When you're in public office, you're under a fine microscope and I made it a point not to do any kind of developing while I was in office," Mr. Barenboim said. "I didn't have to (stay out of it), I just thought it was the right thing to do."

Now that he's left office, he will be more apt to work on a project if the right opportunity presents itself, he said.

Jim Barenboim

of Shoals of Portsmouth with a group of close friends and they invited him along. On the ride out to the island, some of the friends, all Andoverites, said to the 31-year-old James M. Barenboim, "We think you should run for selectman."

"Why me?" was Mr. Barenboim's response.

They said the board needed someone with new blood, a business background, and that they thought he'd be a good choice.

"I was somewhat flattered that these men thought so much of me, and I said 'yes.' "

But by Monday, back on dry land and with the festivities of the weekend behind him, Mr. Barenboim had second thoughts. He called them to back out but was told it was too late: "We've already taken your (nomination) papers out."

He was elected.

Slow start

At first, Mr. Barenboim was slightly idealistic. He thought he could make some significant changes right away, but learned quickly he was wrong. At his third meeting he brought in what he thought was a good idea – though he doesn't remember today exactly what it was – and was voted down 4-1.

"I remember the other people (on the board) looking at me like – no way," Mr. Barenboim said. "Because I didn't know the proper way of handling the rest of the board."

"After you're there a while, you learn the inner makeup of the board, and each person has their own style," he said. "What makes the Andover Board of Selectmen so great is, I think everyone of them through my nine years, everyone of them had only the best interest of the town (in mind). And because we all came from different backgrounds teacher, fireman, psychologist, college graduate, housewife – it just made for a well rounded board so that all the people in the town were well represented."

Back to basics

"My motto when I ran was... to return to basics. And up until the last year or so, I was pretty much against all new building." He pushed to concentrate on the infrastructure that was already in place and for not adding to it until it was solid. "I think over the last nine years, the infrastructure in this town is far better than it was."

The town had spent a lot of money renovating Old Town Hall, Memorial Hall Library and town offices, and the infrastructure had been neglected, he said. "It was not bad, but we had to stop it to go back to the infrastructure.

"I think certainly my voice helped in slowing down what I thought was important, taking care of the streets, etcetera, already in place."

Reelection

Though he had reservations before he was even elected, Mr. Barenboim was a selectman three terms.

"When I got on, I realized it was going to take a lot longer to learn the system, to try and implement some of the ideas I had."

He didn't run to have a new career, and the second time around he ran without really campaigning. He'd decided that if people liked what he'd done in his first term, they'd elect him again. They did.

"The third time I had no interest in running, but I ran unopposed. So I said, 'OK,. I'll do it one more time.' "

He made it clear from the start it would be the last term he'd serve.

"It wasn't because I didn't like it. It was because I thought I'd accomplished most of the things I'd set out to," and because, even at the local level, he believes in term limits.

ambulance after he was shot.

We lived in two different houses in the Village, one right near the bottom of the hill where Essex Street meets Shawsheen Road, the other up the hill a little. There was an apple orchard on the side of the hill going up to Cuba Street. The Smith & Dove factory had a playground for children at the corner of Shawsheen Road. I played there sometimes. They had a sort of dormitory for their single workers, too. The area around the house I live in now (upper Stevens Street) was a cow pasture. It was a lot flatter then – they put in a great deal of fill when they built these houses.

There were other children in the Village with whom I played as a child. People moved in and out of the mill jobs. My best memories of what I did with other children center around the Andover Guild on Brook Street. We played basketball, learned to dance, and had gymnasium classes. There was a bowling alley there, too. I also remember bobsledding down Essex Street when I wasn't supposed to. I hurt my leg and didn't get any sympathy.

One other thing I remember that people don't seem to believe: We used to fill bottles with real spring water from a spring that went under Red Spring Road beyond Moraine Street. There was a pipe that came out of the ground, and it gave us our drinking water. Before this area was filled in, there were also five springs at the end of Stevens Street.

I went to Indian Ridge School for the first six grades. My mother went there, too, probably in the late '90s. There were only three classrooms – two grades to a room, all on the first floor. The upstairs was the hall. The school was on the high side of Cuba Street over toward Indian Ridge, but this side of where the high school football field is now. I can remember sitting on the rocks in back of the school, and also sliding on the hill that was back there. I recall the teachers telling us the rocks were left by the glacier. I thought, what if we have another glacier – we'll all be under ice!

The bicycle I had as a child was a Redwing which was bought at The Whatnot, a store that was owned by Charles Francis. It was the first store on the left on Park Street, where the real estate office is now. There were only about two of us in the Village who had bikes.

I'm getting a little nostalgic now. I remember a store run by a Mrs. Riley. My grandmother used to do a lot of knitting and I had to go up there and get the yarn. She was making booties or socks for some youngsters at the Wood Estate. The Woods had ordered something from Mrs. Riley, who got in touch with my grandmother.

'After I moved to Burnham Road, I can remember going to the dances at the Balmoral Ballroom, behind the Spa. We would walk home, under the railroad bridge, and if I didn't make it in 15 minutes, I was in trouble because my family could hear when the music stopped.'

– Annetta Wrigley

Then there was a food store, Basso's, a little later, and they always did a thriving business in coconuts on Memorial Day. They were in the same building as the Candy Kitchen. It was a building that looked like a house. In fact, there was an apartment upstairs. That would have been in the '20s.

I was in St. Catherine's Guild at Christ Church as a child. We met during the week and learned sewing. Somebody would read books (good books) to us while we sewed. In my teens, I was in St. Margaret's Guild, also a girls' group. I can't remember just what we did there.

My memories of the First World War are just of personal things. My grandmother used to knit many things, and I was learning to knit although I don't know if anything I ever made was good enough to go to the servicemen. During the Second World War, I was working in Boston. My husband went into the service later because he was older, but he was gone for awhile.

After I moved to Burnham Road, I can remember going to the dances at the Balmoral Ballroom, behind the Spa. We would walk home, under the railroad bridge, and if I didn't make it in 15 minutes, I was in trouble because my family could hear when the music stopped.

In seventh and eighth grades, I was in Stowe School. We had a girls' basketball team there, but I don't think we played other schools – it was just for learning the game. A high school student taught us. I don't even remember if we had a real court. Then I went to Punchard High for four years. It was one building then, no Memorial Auditorium.

As for what we did uptown, I went to the library a lot. We did some silly things, too. It didn't happen often, but occasionally, if there was a wedding at St. Augustine's, we'd follow them in. Nobody would put us out. We'd just sit in the back for the wedding ceremony.

I can remember being in the Lincoln spelling matches, which were held in the Town Hall on Main Street (now the Town House). In the fifth grade match, I went down when there were three people left, but the other two missed the word also so I went back up on stage. I stayed up for quite a while, but then went down before the other two, so I was still third. In sixth grade, I came in second and I think I won first in the seventh grade. In grade eight, I came in second. I don't remember exactly how it was done, but I think there was a "finals" of winners from all the grades, and I won that once also. I also remember the first time my aunt and uncle came. It was my freshman year. I was the first one to get a word, and I failed it. It was "employment," and I spelled it with an "e" after the "y."

Stores that I remember uptown: There was Irma Beene's, but that was later. Before that, it was Hiller's and there was a shoe store near it. The Dame Shop, that was later also, and the Candy Kitchen go way back, at least to my teens.

And holidays! Everybody was more patriotic in those days. At the Memorial Day parade, we'd carry a little flag and a coconut while we were watching. I never walked in that parade, but I did walk in a parade that used to start at the Square and go down Main Street to the bridge here in Stevens Street. We threw wild flowers into the water to honor the sailors. It wasn't Memorial Day. I think it might have had something to do with the Women's Relief Corps, and it was sometime around Memorial Day. Of course, on the Fourth of July they had the Horribles Parade and a bonfire at the Playstead the night before the Fourth.

I started to work as assistant town clerk in the early '50s. I didn't really want to come back to Andover to work because I had worked in Boston for 22 years at Factory Mutual and loved every minute of it. I supervised about 24 people. But Factory Mutual was building a new plant in Norwood, and I didn't drive, so it would have been too far to go every day. The Andover assistant town clerk was getting married and moving to Montreal, so I had the opportunity to have this job and I took it. I worked there 21 years from 1953 to 1974. I liked it; people whom I'd known all my life would come in. I had two weeks to think about accepting the position, and I called in on the last day to say yes. I had enjoyed the people with whom I work in Boston so much, I was a little hesitant to accept the job in Andover. However, working in Andover was much more convenient, but of course, the salary was much less.

All the years I was working in Boston, I didn't go to uptown Andover too often. But after I started working here, I did all my shopping in town. There was Elander's and Lee's on Barnard Street where the fish market is now.

Somewhere way back, I remember taking a train to Lawrence. One train would stop in South Lawrence. There was also one that went all the way. I'd take it on Saturdays to shop or to go to the theater. They had stage plays with stock companies then. The name of the theater might have been the Warner. You could also take a streetcar or trolley car to Lawrence. There was a time when there were jitneys – they were like taxis that held five or six people. They may have used them either because of a strike or because of the First World War.

Oops! Rose isn't retiring

By Don Staruk

Town employees who planned a surprise retirement party for Rose Vandewalle, town offices receptionist, got a surprise of their own Tuesday. The employees bought Ms. Vandewalle a decorative mirror and about $200 cash as retirement gifts to give her at the party. Tomorrow, Friday, was to be Ms. Vandewalle's last day on the job. But when Ms. Vandewalle walked into the party in the third floor conference room at town offices, her reaction was, "Oh my God. I'm so embarrassed. I didn't tell anybody I'm not retiring," according to one of those who was there.

Ms. Vandewalle had planned to retire, but when she found out that her retirement pension would be greatly reduced because of Social Security, she decided not to stop working. Marianne O'Leary, retirement benefits and accounting office employee, called Ms. Vandewalle to the accounting office an hour before the party to go over her retirement papers, but also to get her out of the hallway so she wouldn't see people coming to the party. It wasn't until then that Ms. Vandewalle told Ms. O'Leary that she'd had second thoughts.

The employees went ahead with the celebration anyway, renaming it a "Welcome back" party.

Fire chief says AHS will reopen next week

By Neil Fater

With the contractor saying its workers will finish installing the newly-designed smoke evacuation system this week in Andover High School's lobby, Andover High School students and staff should return to school Monday after their week of April vacation.

"There will be school next week. Everything is in place; it's just fine-tuning the process," said Chuck Murnane, deputy fire chief. "As far as the fire department's concerned, there's no question there will be school next week. We know now we have all the pieces to the puzzle."

The fire department and building inspector will test the new system Friday, April 25, said Mike McCormick, senior field representative for the town's project manager, Mead Consulting.

"We don't anticipate any problems," said Mr. McCormick. "That will be a load off our minds when that's done."

Harold Wright, fire chief, had said the school would not open after April vacation if the problems with the smoke evacuation system were not resolved by the end of the week.

The chief was angered when he learned several weeks ago that architects never addressed the inadequate safety system after the fire department issued a temporary occupancy permit when the system failed a test before the September opening of school.

Architects designed a possible solution that Stone-Congress, the contractor, said it received April 10. Workers realized this plan couldn't be finished in time because it would take four weeks to acquire some of the materials. As a result, some temporary supplies will be used so school can reopen on time, said Bill Nicholson, president of one-half of Stone-Congress.

"We will be able to complete the work from that second plan," said Mr. Nicholson.

Besides fixing the lobby smoke evacuation system this week, workers are also painting the so called buffer classrooms and installing ceiling and floor tiles there.

209 voters show up for third night of Town Meeting

By Don Staruk

Just 209 of the town's 19,143 registered voters showed up for the third night of Town Meeting last Wednesday, April 16, but they managed to spend $830,000 and to change a few zoning bylaws.

Voters approved petitions to:

• Exempt the police chief's position from civil service;

• Push back the date by which the town manager must submit his budget, from the third Friday in January to the first Friday in February. This will give the manager two more weeks to prepare the budget, but will give selectmen and the Finance Committee two weeks less to analyze it;

• Change the town's annual election date from the fourth Monday in March to the fourth Tuesday, to be consistent with state and national elections, which are held on Tuesdays;

• Spend $600,000 on a new ladder/pumper truck for the Fire Department;

• Spend $150,000 for architectural/engineering fees for new/renovated Public Safety Building;

• Acquire Colonial Drive and spend $38,000 to repair it;

• Acquire Patriot Drive and spend $17,000 to repair it;

• Spend $25,000 to expand handicap-accessible bus service and bus service for seniors;

• Amend the zoning bylaw related to adult-use, an attempt to head off court challenges to the bylaw approved last year;

• Prohibit commercial communications towers from single family zoned areas;

• Amend the zoning bylaw to restrict some development. One change will require 100 percent of the minimum lot size to be free of wetlands. Another extends minimum setbacks on residential B and C lots. A third disallows extremely sloped land to be included minimum lot sizes qualifications, treating the sloped portions of properties similar to wetlands for protection purposes;

• Amend the zoning bylaw to encourage creation of pathways in new developments;

• Accept as public ways the following streets: Samos Lane, Heritage Lane, Newman Hill Drive, Possum Hollow Road, Stone Post Road, Harmony Lane, Scotland Drive, Acorn Drive, Hazelwood Street, Basswood Lane and Furnari Lane, formerly Cypress Lane.

Voters denied a request to establish March 1 as the last date to submit warrant articles for Annual Town Meeting.

Articles that were withdrawn included petitions to:

• Improve and accept David Drive as a public way;

• Restrict the amount of earth that can be brought into a new development to make it buildable.

The limousine carries Larry Redding home Tuesday. He and his wife, Lori, walked home from the top of the loop of Tilton Lane, hugging well-wishers and laughing with family and friends who lined the street.

The tent's to the left of the Reddings' house. There was an air of celebration at the home-coming. Television cameras and newspaper photographers showed up. Cards of welcome from friends were hung from the edge of the tent. The home-coming event was a surprise for Larry Redding.

A story of hope and recovery

Larry's first day out, he addressed the congregation."

"Tonight we're going to feed our friends," Ms. Redding told me Tuesday morning. "It's our way of saying thanks. Tonight is a surprise. He doesn't know it's happening. My oldest daughter is at Northeast with him, keeping him company. He could have come home this morning, but I told him, 'I'm sorry honey, I have to go to work.' I haven't been to work in three months. But I want as many people as possible to be there and they couldn't be here in the morning.

"So my life has changed. We've had a happy marriage of 18 years. We've had some rough spots. But if ever I doubted how much I love him, I found out through this."

If you call the Reddings and get their answering machine, Larry's voice is some of what you hear. "I'm doing OK," he says. "Thank you for your prayers and visitations. I'd still like to see you. Don't stop coming. Please show up and I'll continue to get better. We'll take walks."

Amen.

Raises questions about the new senior center

Editor, Townsman:

As a relative newcomer to Andover I was very interested in attending the recent Town Meeting during which the town was to address some major issues, including the proposed senior citizen's center off Chestnut Court. Having read the newspaper articles before attending the meeting, I was hopeful that more detailed information would be forthcoming. In the end I was disappointed in the paucity of facts presented to the public and the lack of opportunity for discussion of the subject before an overwhelming vote in favor of the project.

The moderator cut off all discussion after three or four speakers, which included the major presentation by the senior citizen's council. I learned that the proposed senior citizen building was approximately 27,700 square feet; was supported by many organizations; would include a parking lot for 200-300 cars and had an annual budget of approximately $900,000, (ie. $4 per square feet above the present budget of $832,000 per year – 1998 projection). The exact yearly number was never clarified until after the vote – it was about $67,000 per year above the present operating budget. How that number was determined was never fully explained.

One resident asked how to conceptualize three acres of land for such a building as had been proposed. The only response came from another resident, "I live on three acres and it's not a lot."

Former School Committee member Susan Dalton seemed well informed and gave some welcomed facts, the most revealing being that on the average only 45 senior citizens use the existing center during the lunch hour. One selectman's response was that he "wasn't very interested in how much our seniors ate" and another reply "for whatever reason lunch time was not a peak time." No follow-up information on what the peak times were or how many seniors use the center was forthcoming.

Access to the new senior center was not discussed. There is only one existing access road – Chestnut Court. How many people who voted in favor of the center's location have ever seen Chestnut Court? It is a narrow road that is also an access road to the veterans/senior apartments. A flow of 200-300 cars on Chestnut Court could lead to considerable congestion. Chestnut Street, which Chestnut Court empties on to, is already a heavily used, deteriorating street that is fraught with fast traffic. Will there be a stop sign/traffic light or the eventual policeman negotiating traffic at the Chestnut Court/Chestnut Street intersection? Was any study done concerning traffic flow and density? Will sidewalks be built and/or repaired along Chestnut Court/Chestnut Street to ensure the safety of our walking senior citizens, not to mention the children walking to and from school and the young children who live and play on Chestnut Street already?

I called Methuen to obtain information on their senior citizens center since I was told it was a very nice center. Methuen has an estimated population of 42,000 people. It has one of, if not the highest number of seniors per capita. It serves 200 senior citizens. Their building is 18,000 square feet. Their operating budget is $250,000 per year. They do not have an adult day-care program . The center is not owned by the town, but rather is run by a non-profit corporation. The town donates about $50,000 per year to the operating budget. This helps put in perspective a 27,700-square-foot building, 300-car parking lot and an annual budget close to $1,000,000 for Andover.

Ironically a school planning budget of $200,000 was passed to plan a new school building. Why was not a similar approach taken with the senior center? Though some of the money appropriated will go to planning, the town has never formally tested the land to state whether it is build-worthy, made architectural plans, etc. Why not appropriate a small amount of money to find the "ideal" senior center spot in Andover before voting on such a major project?

Despite my efforts, I felt ill informed to vote on this project. Are there answers to the above questions? If they do exist, they were not readily available at the Town Meeting and Andover residents at the meeting were prevented from searching for them because the discussion on the issue was limited. It was impossible to vote in the affirmative given the information available.

CO alarm may have saved this family

Editor, Townsman:

A loud alarm disrupted our household on Sunday April 6th, around 9 p.m. Upon investigation, the alarm turned out to be coming from the sole carbon monoxide detector in the house. Not wanting to take any chances, we called the fire department and pulled jackets on our three sleeping young children and brought them along with our dog out into the night air. The firefighters came quickly and detected a potentially lethal level of CO or carbon monoxide (220 p.p.m.) One fireman indicated that this was the highest he had ever seen in a home. Two of us experienced mild symptoms of CO poisoning which soon passed with exposure to the night air and the administration of oxygen by the firefighters. The Andover Fire Department team did a great job, and we thank them.

We are writing this letter to remind people that CO is a potentially deadly gas that can be generated in a number

Andover's a red hot place right now

Make sure to read Don Staruk's story in the section in today's paper on real estate values. In case you haven't noticed, real estate values in Andover right now are up. The residential market is strong, but, according to assessor William Krajeski, research and development and office space in Andover is, right now, as hot as it gets.

Remember that $232,000 median house in Andover that we've referred to for the last couple of years? That house was worth $273,000 through the end of last year. And the median sale price of that house was $295,000 in the fourth quarter of 1996. That was just for one quarter, but that's a big jump. The median price has been increasing 6 to 9 percent the last few years, according to Mr. Krajeski.

Industry and business in West Andover is growing, banks are lending money for mortgages, and the town issued 95 building permits for new homes in Andover last year, and 29 already this year.

Valuations are up an average of 12 percent. That's good news if you're selling your house, not great news if you're squeezed by too large a tax bill.

For some people, this booming economy is not good news. They worry about crowded schools, over burdened town services such as police, fire and public works. They'd like to see growth slowed down, not accelerated.

Land that's developable will be developed, and there's not much the town can do to stop it. Our job as a community is to see that areas that shouldn't be developed aren't; and that land that is developed is developed properly, with strict adherence to Andover's zoning bylaw, Wetlands Protection Act and other regulations in place to protect our precious land.

In the meantime, we will continue to be vigilant, to monitor growth, to plan for the future, and to take care of our community.

Larry Redding came home to Tilton Lane Tuesday afternoon, where more than 200 neighbors, family-members and admirers welcomed him. Escorted by a police cruiser, he arrived in a white limousine, which circled the crowd once, and then he got out and walked home. Patrolman Redding's wife, Lori, had a tent brought in for the occasion, and she fed the crowd – the family's way of saying thank-you for your support.

Larry Redding came home Tuesday

Redding is the firearms instructor for the Northeastern United States. He also is the leader of the Special Operations Unit, which is the SWAT team. The gun "blew out," is the way patrolman Redding's wife, Lori, explains it today. That time he was lucky. During the day, he'd been training by shooting the gun with two hands. But this time it was night, and when it's dark you shoot with one hand holding the gun and the other a flashlight. Had he been shooting two-fisted, he would have lost his hand, his wife says.

When the gun blew out, shrapnel flew into patrolman Redding's eye socket. The schrapnel was removed at the time at Mass. Eye and Ear Infirmary in Boston. Scar tissue that close to the brain fired off patrolman Redding's near-death experience.

Jan. 28 of this year, at 11:45 a.m., patrolman Redding was in a car accident at 132 Salem St., in Wilmington. His wife says he'd left work to pick up lunch. "He was seen slumped over the wheel," she said this week. "His car was out of control. He ended up in somebody's lane. A woman hit his door, doing probably 40 miles an hour. He was dragged along the ground, head bouncing on the ground. He broke his pelvis, ribs, spine, his tibia, and he had severe traumatic brain injury."

Ms. Redding says her husband had rapid seizures, which doctors couldn't stop. He had surgery to relieve pressure on his brain.

"Tests indicated he was brain dead," she said.

Larry Redding was alive because machines were breathing for him. Doctors were having trouble controlling the cranial pressure. The third night he was misdiagnosed, his wife said, and doctors announced he had 48 hours to live.

He lived through that, and then 10 days after the accident, Ms. Redding was told her husband of 18 years "had no brain and that I should pull the plug now."

"I pursued a second opinion," said Ms. Redding, who owns a placement services firm in Billerica.

At another hospital, Ms. Redding was told by one doctor, "If you pull the plug on this guy, we'll have you arrested for murder."

So the family moved the comatose patrolman Redding into that hospital.

Everything did not run smoothly. The town of Wilmington and patrolman Reddington's health insurance were arguing over who would pay for what. "A lot of places didn't want him" (to be hospitalized there), she said.

They took him to Northeast Rehab where doctors looked at the amount of medication he was on and told his wife that a lot of the drugs were coma-inducing.

"They got him off his medication and within two weeks of being there, he began to show signs of awakening," she said. "After being there two and a half weeks, he was out of the coma. Now he's walking, jogging and his deductive tests are at the genius level. He has some problems with his short-term memory."

But Larry Redding knows his wife and he knows his two daughters, 17-year-old Jessica and 15-year-old Jiliyan, both Andover High School students.

"If I say, 'Honey, what did we do yesterday?' he'll tell me," said Ms. Redding. "He's coming along remarkably."

"My dad (Bill Watson, pastor at BrookRidge Community Church on Haverhill Street) has walked us through this spiritually. They had prayer vigils for Larry. On Easter.

Andover Pediatric Dental Center

The Andover Pediatric Dental Center is very different from most dental offices. Located in a restored 200 year old colonial house at 174 Lowell St., it is also the home of Dr. Art Daniels and his three children. Waiting rooms with comfortable, wicker chairs contrast sharply with brightly lighted treatment rooms, dazzling visions of 21st century dental technology, combined with a kid's dream of a play room (an arcade size Sega machine and a ship's bell to clang when a child is cavity free). Dr. Daniels has thought of everything to make sure Andover Pediatric Dental Center creates a lasting impression, and that impression is: Prevention, Prevention, Prevention. Dr. Daniels' goal, as a pediatric dentist, is to insure a cavity free childhood through education.

Flossie the Horsey and Elizza Moo Little, Dr. Daniels' stuffed assistants help him illustrate what it takes to achieve this goal. Good flossing technique, thorough brushing, healthy eating habits and the latest advances in sealants, to protect the deep grooves and crevices on chewing surfaces, keep decay from occurring. With close monitoring of developing teeth, Dr. Daniels also strives to keep teeth coming in on track, as a way of preventing lengthy and expensive orthodontia. In practice for over 20 years, some of Dr. Daniels' early patients are now showing up with toddlers of their own.

Father of three Andover raised children, Matthew, Amy and Peter, Dr. Daniels is a long time supporter of town wide youth activities, and a familiar face around town. Whether in his office or riding in his Tooth Fairy float in the Andover 350th parade, Dr. Daniels makes an impression. He has the skill, the dedication, and the personality to give parents what they want for their children; that is, education in good oral hygiene for a lifetime and healthy, attractive smiles.

Andover Pediatric Dental Center is located at 174 Lowell Street, Andover. Telephone (508) 474-0082 for an appointment.

of ways including a malfunctioning oil or gas furnace (as in our case), wood stoves, fireplaces and gas-powered engines. That our house is of fairly new construction and tightly sealed may have contributed to the high concentration of CO in the house since the gas had little chance to escape. You can't smell, taste or see CO, but the symptoms of mild poisoning include headache, dizziness, nausea, chest pain and fainting. Maintained exposure to high CO levels can result in unconsciousness and death.

We strongly feel that a disastrous situation was averted because we had a carbon monoxide detector in the house and thus were alerted to a dangerous situation. We have been urging family and friends who do not have detectors to get them quickly. We hope that this letter leaves the same message with your readers. If you are confused about CO detectors, the November '96 issue of Consumer Reports published a very helpful study on carbon monoxide detectors. Detectors are readily available at almost any local hardware store.

As for our family, we are now the proud and thankfully healthy owners of three CO detectors and a newly repaired furnace.

Community project at Doherty Middle School

Editor, Townsman:

Something wonderful happened at Doherty Middle School last week. An energetic group of students from every grade, teachers, parents, and even a few interested folks from the community got together under the wide umbrella of the Doherty Drama Club's production of You're A Good Man Charlie Brown. The enthusiasm was catching, and the combined talent — on, off and behind stage — was a pleasure to see. The kids were obviously thrilled with what they had created. But the best part was applauding this vibrant evidence that community spirit is flourishing at Doherty. Thanks to directors Mr. Givens and Mr. Mirisola for giving so many different people such a great opportunity to contribute.

Michael Dorris' death: tragic fiction

Editor, Townsman:

Michael Dorris dead at 52.

It doesn't sound right. I'm blinking at the newsprint and my mind is racing over this fact which unfurls like a tragic piece of fiction. His name conjures up a myriad of images which back-chain themselves hurling me to the fall of 1992.

I'm sitting with some colleagues discussing the usual traumas of trying to help young children and families cope with poverty and disabilities – a dual burden often borne less than gracefully. We're particularly discouraged about a family who is keeping their infant's bed (a makeshift box) next to the toilet in the bathroom. There's talk of suspected Fetal Alcohol Syndrome (FAS) in a sibling. The special educator begins talking about Dorris' book Broken Cord in which Dorris describes his son with FAS. Had we read it? No one had and several of us said we weren't interested in reading about what we were living in our 8 to 5 jobs. My colleague persisted with me about the merits of the book. Some months later I found myself buying a copy. I was looking for a book to help my college students understand disabilities from a less clinical and more personal perspective.

Dorris' account as a perplexed parent of Adam, a child with FAS, is moving. He invites the reader on an unsentimental journey to find answers to Adam's puzzling behaviors and to explore solutions of which there are few. Not only does he portray a realistic picture of Adam's struggles in life, but Dorris also lays open his own vulnerabilities and conflicts around being a father to a difficult child. As one of my students put it, this guy has heart.

The guy with heart is now no longer. And we're all a little diminished because of it.

The above paragraphs were written and sent off Tuesday evening. On Wednesday evening, I met a friend for dinner who upon greeting me immediately thrust the headlines "Dorris Accused of Sexual Abuse" across the table. I squinted. I read while a lump in my throat formed for the second time in two days. The flood of "whys" hammered at my brain followed by the slower realization that I had intended to publicly praise a man who now had a long dark shadow hovering over him.

We're all diminished by Dorris' death, but it did not seem likely as it does now that some may have been diminished by his life as well.

What's on next week's School Committee agenda?

Goodbyes will be the order of the night Tuesday, April 29, when the School Committee considers bidding adieu to three acres of land behind Doherty Middle School, and establishing the last day of school for all students.

Town Meeting last week voted in favor of transferring approximately three acres of land behind Doherty to the selectmen so the Council on Aging can use the land for a new senior center. However, this Town Meeting vote does not force the transfer. Only the School Committee can transfer the land, and members are expected to do so Tuesday because the committee unanimously supported the article at Town Meeting.

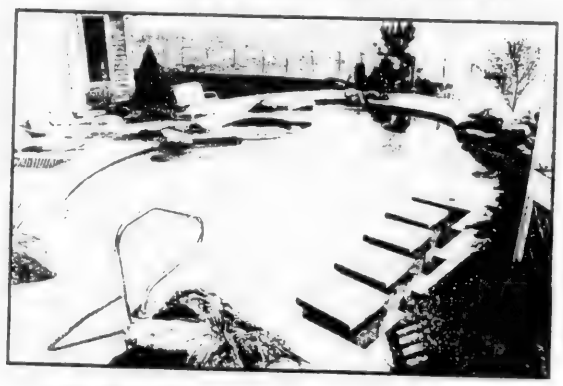

The last day of school for this year will be established as Monday, June 23.

Next year's school calendar could also be approved Tuesday. A proposed calendar had the 1997-1998 school year beginning Sept. 4 for students and closing June 25. There are five snow days built into this calendar.

This may be found money

State Treasurer Joe Malone announced that the Treasurer's Office has compiled a list of individuals and organizations who have money waiting for them under the Commonwealth's abandoned property law, and that it is available for viewing for the first time on the World Wide Web.

"This year, over $85 million has been turned over to my office as unclaimed property," Mr. Malone said. "I urge every citizen to check the abandoned property listing because we are eager to return all of this money to its rightful owners."

By Massachusetts' Unclaimed Property Act, property becomes "unclaimed" when there is no owner-generated activity on a financial asset for a three year period, 15 years in the case of travelers checks.

shot put (31'11") and the latter in the long jump (15'10").

Sophomore Kristen Munson contributed a pair of seconds, placing runner-up to Chelmsford indoor State Class A champ Caitlin Klick in both the 800 meters and two-mile. Munson ran the 800 in 2:32.7 and the deuce in 12:02, while Klick broke the tape in 2:27.3 and 11:52 respectively.

Freshman Lindsay Ravens (200 meters, 28.4), sophomore Chiddima Ibe (100 meters, 13.8) and freshman Kacie Dexter (400 meters, 65.6) also finished second for Andover.

Munroe added a third in the 100-meter hurdles (17.7) and Harris third in the triple jump (31'5").

Completing the Lady Warriors' scoring with additional thirds were long jumper Siobhan Landry (14'4"), senior miler and Captain Abby Clarke (5:53.1), freshman Allison Corey (400 meters, 66.6) and senior Captain Jocelyn Gould (800 meters, 2:34).

MEN'S TRACK

Craig Hartwell and Peter Ellis accounted for 30 points and exactly half of Andover's 12 first places as the Golden Warriors belted Chelmsford, 84-57.

Head Coach Dick Collins' squad, 1-1 overall and 1-0 in Division I of the Merrimack Valley Conference, will compete Saturday in the Haverhill Invitational and return to dual-meet action next Wednesday at Billerica (3:30).

The AHS men will also host Phillips Academy later next week.

Chelmsford 57

The Golden Warriors, who swept the javelin, held a healthy scoring edge in both the field events (35-28) and running events (49-29).

Hartwell's three individual wins came in the javelin (142'7"), discus (129'9") and 300-meter intermediate hurdles (44.6).

Ellis, capturing three first places for the second straight meet, was tops in the pole vault (13'0"), high jump (6'0") and 110-meter high hurdles (14.7).

Other individual victors were senior Captain Tim Smith in the long jump (20'11"), junior Matt Aufiero (200 meters, 23.7), Garrity (400 meters, 55.4), senior Captain Matt Herling (mile, 4:40.5) and senior two-miler Todd Collins (10:12).

Aufiero also joined senior Matt Yost, junior Adam Espinola and junior Brent Sinowski on the victorious 4x100 meter sprint relay team (45.6).

Completing the sweep of the javelin were senior Josh Murphy (126'10") and Mike Scarpula (123'2").

Yost (11.5) and Espinola (11.5) were 2-3 in the 100 meters, while junior Dave Nassiff added a second in the 300-meter hurdles (44.7) and third in the 110-meter hurdles (16.7).

Other AHS runners-up were junior Ethan Murphy (200 meters, 23.9), senior Captain Donnie Pattullo (800 meters, 2:04.7) and pole vaulter Ryan DeBlais (10'6").

Also placing third for the locals were senior Matt Muench in both the shot put (40'5") and discus (116'1"), senior high jumper Mike Orlandella (5'6"), junior Hasan Erdem (400 meters, 55.6), sophomore Evan Stuart (800 meters, 2:10.6), freshman miler Greg Stamm (4:50) and junior two-miler Chris Rillahan (10:39).

SOFTBALL

The Lady Warriors parlayed five walks, three hit batsmen, several errors and some slick baserunning into the unusual 3-2 victory over non-league visitor Nazareth Academy of Wakefield.

The loss was the first in six games for Nazareth (5-1), and this marked the first time the two schools had ever met on the softball diamond.

Andover returns to Merrimack Valley Conference play on Saturday morning at Haverhill (10 a.m.), and Monday the locals travel to play at Chelmsford (3:30 p.m.).

The Lady Warriors, 1-2 overall and 0-1 in the league, also had a scheduled game against Central Catholic rained out last Friday. No new date has been announced.

Crispo sidelined

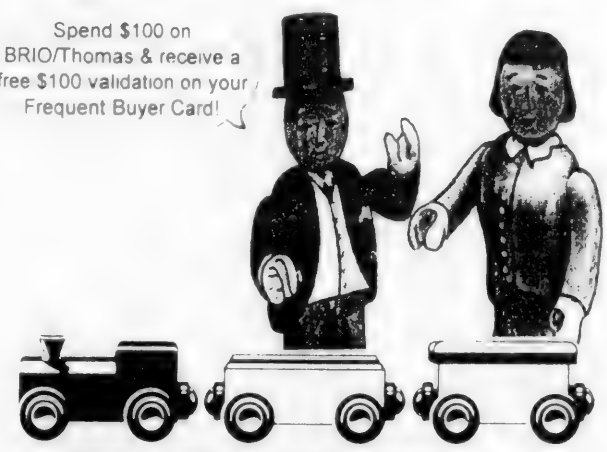

The victory over Nazareth was tempered by the fact it marked the end of fleet senior outfielder Michelle Crispo's high school

Both AHS tennis teams stay undefeated

AHS SPORTS ROUNDUP

By Rick Harrison

Seniors Craig Hartwell and Peter Ellis placed first in three events each as the Andover High men's track team squared its dual-meet record with a solid 84-57 victory over visiting Chelmsford at the Lovely oval.

The AHS women completed a sweep of the Lions, leveling their record as well, with a tighter 70-61 triumph as Courtney Barron, Stephanie Brown, Erin Harris, Megan Munroe and Kristen Munson all placed top three in two events for the locals.

Both Andover tennis teams continued to roll along undefeated, at 5-0, while the men's volleyball team did a positive about-face with three straight wins to square its overall record at 3-3.

The AHS softball team also handed first-year head coach Stephanie Ragucci her first victory — the hard way — edging Nazareth Academy of Wakefield 3-2 without getting a hit.

WOMEN'S TRACK

The Lady Warriors, 1-1 overall and 1-0 in Division I of the Merrimack Valley Conference, placed first in eight of the 15 events contested (no mile relay) and swept the long jump on the way to the 70-61 triumph over MVC indoor champ Chelmsford (1-1).

The AHS women return to dual meet action next Wednesday at Billerica (3:30 p.m.), and follow that by hosting Phillips Academy two days later in the annual crosstown showdown.

Chelmsford 61

Andover outscored Chelmsford 44-33 in the running events, while the Lions held a slim 28-26 advantage in the six field events.

Individual field event winners for AHS were junior Courtney Barron in the triple jump (32'7"), junior Jenn Mann in the long jump (16'4") and seniors Stephanie Brown and Captain Erin Harris, who tied in the high jump (4'10").

First-place finishers in the running events were junior Barbara Contos in the 100-meter high hurdles (16.4), sophomore Shannon Callahan-Higgins in the 300-meter intermediate hurdles (52.4), sprinters Nolia Hill (100 meters, 13.7) and freshman Megan Munroe (200 meters, 28.3), and junior miler Katherine Blais (5:33).

Nazareth put the tying runner aboard in the seventh after a two-out AHS error, but Blank retired the next batter on a game-ending popout.

Sparking the crisp defensive effort were sophomore shortstop Kaitlin Dargan, who had five assists and cut down a Nazareth runner at the plate in the first inning, along with outfielders Sawin and Crispo and first baseman Jen Murnane.

MEN'S TENNIS

In stretching their Merrimack Valley Conference win streak through 74 straight matches, the Andover High netmen (5-0) blitzed Lowell 5-0 and were challenged only at second doubles on the way to a 4-1 decision over host Billerica.

The Golden Warriors were next slated to play at non-league intra-town rival Phillips Academy tomorrow afternoon.

AHS has three matches in three days next week against Methuen (home) on Monday, at non-league St. John's Prep in Danvers on Tuesday, and at Haverhill on Wednesday

Andover 4
Billerica 1

Senior Captain Ross Fenton remained unbeaten over the past two seasons with a 6-0, 6-0 romp against the Indians' Bryan Ly at first singles.

Senior Captain Dave Sullivan registered a symmetrical 6-2, 6-2 win over Todd Saggese at second singles, and freshman Evan Sideman rolled to a methodical 6-0, 6-0 decision over Wes Zichitella at third singles.

Senior Alan Hibino and freshman Peter Hughes were lopsided 6-0, 6-1 victors at first doubles.

Senior Brian Yoon and sophomore Andy Rubin took the first set to a tiebreaker at second doubles, but Billerica's Jon Pomerleau and Phil Whitman played tough and emerged with a 7-6, 6-2 victory for the Indians' lone point.

Andover 5
Lowell 0

Previously-undefeated Lowell put up a decent struggle, especially at second doubles where Brian Yoon and Peter Hughes were forced to come from behind for a three-set 5-7, 6-1, 6-3 triumph over Socheat Pray and Som Boualaphanh.

Ross Fenton continued to rule at first singles with a 6-2, 6-1 dispatch of Daniel Gamba, while Dave Gutstein returned to the second slot and swept past the Red Raiders' Jim Manning 6-4, 6-0.

Dave Sullivan duplicated Fenton's effort with a similar 6-2, 6-1 conquest of Casey McGee at third singles.

Alan Hibino and Evan Sideman paired at first doubles and rolled to a 6-2, 6-2 deci-

Andover Blue and Gold Pony League baseball tryouts next weekend, May 3-4

The Andover Blue and Gold Pony League baseball teams will hold tryouts on Saturday and Sunday, May 3-4, at the new Andover High varsity baseball field behind the West Middle School.

All youngsters ages 13-15, who will not turn 16 prior to Aug. 1, are eligible to try out.

On Saturday, all 13-year-old candidates should report from 1:30-3 p.m., while 14- and 15-year-olds should report from 3-5 p.m.

Sunday tryout times will be announced on Saturday.

Andover returns to the two-team setup this year, after field problems forced the organization to cut back to one team last summer.

Andover Blue and Gold will play in the expanded Suburban Pony League, which has grown to 20 teams encompassing 15 eastern Massachusetts and southern New Hampshire towns.

Other towns involved include North Andover, Methuen, Lowell, North Reading, Reading, Wilmington, Lynnfield, Stoneham, Winthrop and Medford.

Joining the league this year are Woburn, Haverhill and Salem, N.H.

Over the years Andover has enjoyed great success in the league, with Blue and Gold combining for more than a dozen division titles and seven overall league championships.

Kevin Rourke, a graduate of the league and assistant varsity baseball coach at Andover High, returns to coach the Blue.

Dan Hughes takes over the Gold reins after several successful seasons coaching in the Andover Little League.

League games begin in mid-June and continue through early August, with the top teams competing in the playoffs.

Crispo is scheduled for ankle surgery soon to clear up problems that, if left unattended, would jeopardize her college athletic career.

"Michelle had the same type of surgery on her other ankle and it worked out great," said coach Ragucci. "We'll really miss her. She's the complete package. An excellent player and a terrific person. We expect her to be at most of our games and practices, but she won't be able to play again this spring."

Andover 3
Nazareth Academy 2

Junior Noelle Blank weathered a shaky first inning and went on to pitch a complete game, blanking Nazareth over the final six innings and finishing with a five-hitter, three strikeouts and only one walk.

Lindsay Barry tossed the no-hitter for Nazareth but hastened her own downfall with her wildness.

"It looked like it might be a long day when their first two batters got on base and scored," said coach Ragucci. "But Noelle settled down nicely and we took advantage of our opportunities.

"It was also the sharpest of our three games defensively. The whole team played well in the field."

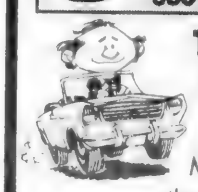

After falling behind 2-0 in the top of the first, Andover scored its first run in the second when Blank walked, took second on Carrie Torrisi's infield out, third on a passed ball and scored on a wild pitch.

Andrea Buonaugourio started the winning third-inning "rally" with a walk. Lisa Sawin was hit by a pitch, the pair worked a double steal, and Buonaugourio scored the tying run on a passed ball.

Michelle Crispo walked and continued to second with no throw by Nazareth. After Courtney Famiglietti's soft liner to short was caught, Sawin raced home on Blank's groundout to second base.

off for the entire vacation week, has a make-up match against non-league rival Holliston tomorrow afternoon at the Dunn Gym (1 p.m.).

Merrimack Valley Conference action resumes next week with matches at Chelmsford on Monday, home against Lowell on Wednesday and at Dracut Friday night (6:30).

Haverhill 0

Playing just hours after the recent gas leak and evacuation at the high school, it took the Golden Warriors a few minutes to get their heads in the match against the visiting Hillies.

Shaking the slow start, Andover rolled to an easy 15-6, 15-5 win over the taller but less experienced Haverhill squad.

"Our skills are better because Haverhill is a first-year team," said coach Sullivan. "We passed well, served well, mixed up the attack and didn't drop down to a weaker opponent's level of play."

AHS made only four serving errors and four serve-receive errors in the match.

Senior middle hitter Zach Gray finished with seven kills, junior first-year player Jeff Danis had five kills and sophomore Ben Mertes three kills.

Juniors Peter Maguire and Matt Rogers were defensive standouts, while Captains Shaun Connors and David An did well as setters.

The Andover JVs remained undefeated (5-0), tied for first in the MVC with Dracut (6-0), after posting a lopsided 2-0 victory (15-6, 15-2).

Freshman Kevin Hess did well setting and hitting, while Matt Gilmore finished with 14 attacks, five kills and four blocks. Other standouts were setter Mike Monteiro and defensive leaders Jim Newell and freshman Ryan Slavin.

Westford Academy 1

With their minds perhaps elsewhere as spring vacation started, the Golden Warriors struggled before rallying to edge host Westford Academy 10-15, 15-6, 15-5.

"Everybody was out to lunch at the start of the match," said coach Sullivan. "We were beating ourselves with inconsistent play. We hit the ball much better in the second and third games, but it definitely wasn't one of our more spectacular performances."

Keying the triumph was the outstanding back-court defensive play of Peter Maguire and Matt Rogers.

"They definitely kept us in the match," said Sullivan. "They hustled to every ball, set up many of our points, kept everyone talking and communicating on the court, and basically sparked a very sluggish team."

There was no junior varsity match because Westford does not have a JV team.

Golf tourney to aid Afarian Scholarship fund

Friends and relatives of the late Peter M. Afarian will host a golf tournament this June to raise money for a scholarship fund in the former Andover resident's name.

Peter, a 1995 Andover High School graduate and a goalie on both the AHS and Fitchburg State College hockey teams, was killed in a car accident on Lowell Street July 28, 1996. His family established the scholarship fund to provide an annual scholarship to a member of each of the two schools' hockey teams in Peter's name.

The Peter M. Afarian Memorial Scholarship Fund Golf Tournament is scheduled for 12:30 p.m. Monday, June 2, at Windham Country Club, Windham, N.H. It will be a shotgun format and is limited to the first 144 players.

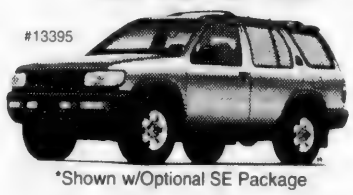

The cost for the tourney is $100 per person, including greens fees, cart, dinner, prizes and gifts. Dinner only is $20 per person.

WOMEN'S TENNIS

Once again all five matches were swept in straight sets as the Lady Warriors rolled to their 99th and 100th consecutive Merrimack Valley Conference victories, 5-0 whitewashes of visiting Billerica and host Lowell.

Andover (5-0), which had a scheduled match against Tewksbury rained out last week, returns to the courts next Monday afternoon at Methuen and Wednesday at home against Haverhill (both 3:30).

Andover 5
Billerica 0

With undefeated two-time MVC Player of the Year and team Captain Heather Young once again resting, freshman Jill Oppenheim took over at first singles and crushed Billerica's Kristen Kneeland 6-0, 6-0.

Junior Lauren Roda was equally devastating at second singles with a similar 6-0, 6-0 blitz of Cheryl Harwood.

Junior Becky Parks beat back a first-set challenge by the Indians' Meredith Bridge and went on to a 7-5, 6-1 victory at third singles.

Sophomores Andrea Wegner and Caitlin Burke teamed at first doubles and produced the third 6-0, 6-0 sweep of the afternoon.

Senior Captain Catherine Bakulski and senior Elisabeth van Damme, paired at second doubles, overpowered Sandy Fletcher and Colleen Donovan of BMHS 6-1, 6-2.

Andover 5
Lowell 0

The Red Raiders were the last MVC team to beat Andover, 3-2 on May 21, 1990.

No such luck on Tuesday in this make-up of an April 10 rainout, as the Lady Warriors dropped only eight games in singles and coasted past the previously-undefeated Red Raiders.

Captain Heather Young returned to the lineup and remained undefeated in league play for her career, stopping Jill Lang 6-1, 6-0.

Phenomenal freshman heir-apparent Jill Oppenheim registered a 6-1, 6-0 victory over Meghan Rourke at second singles, and sophomore Caitlin Burke was a 6-4, 6-2 winner at third singles.

In doubles, freshmen Amy Axlerod and Jenna Bernstein rolled to a 6-1, 6-2 triumph over Lowell's Kathleen Clark and Mimi Louxay at No. 1.

Junior Emily Wilner and senior Captain Dara Ekster capped the romp with a 6-2, 6-0 clinic at second doubles.

MEN'S VOLLEYBALL

The Andover High men's volleyball team climbed back to the .500 mark with a 2-0 sweep of first-year team Haverhill, and a come-from-behind 2-1 victory over Westford Academy.

ANDOVER GIRLS SOFTBALL LEAGUE
Travel Team Tryouts
Travel Team Tryouts will take place on Sunday, May 4, 1997 at the softball fields behind Andover High School. All Andover girls meeting the age requirements are encouraged to tryout.
10 yrs old or under on 8/31/97 11 a.m. - 12:30 p.m.
12 or under on 8/31/97 12:15 - 1:45 p.m.
14 or under on 8/31/97 1:30 - 3:00 p.m.
18 or under on 8/31/97 2: 45 - 4:15 p.m.
Players are to bring their glove, proper footwear and clothing. They will run through a series of drills to fairly evaluate their softball abilities.
Travel team play requires dedication and commitment. The rosters are kept small so that the girls can play as much as possible. Because of this all players must be able to attend all games and practices in order to have a full lineup. Please carefully consider this when making the decision to tryout.
Depending on level of play (i.e. tournament or travel), costs could range between $50 -150 for summer season.
Tryout reservation forms may be picked up at the DCS office.

The staff at Eastern Garage Door in Lawrence

Eastern Garage Door

Eastern Garage Door has been in business serving New England for 46 years. Its longevity is due to an excellent reputation in installation and service to customers. Their business is primarily garage doors, although they handle overhead, rolling, fire and security doors, radio controls, dock seals and bumpers and door operators. They are Wayne Dalton distributors.

Security and safety are major factors with their products. They offer slat, mesh, rolling mall grills, counter shutters, window grates, rolling service doors and automatic fire doors. Scissor grilles combine beauty, security and design flexibility. They also have the new Wayne Dalton pinch-resistant garage doors that keep children's fingers out of harm's way.

Eastern Garage Door can replace an old or damaged garage door in two to three hours, and for as little as $400. An automatic garage door opener can be installed for as little as $270.

Garage doors come in a variety of designs in wood, fiberglass and the most popular and virtually maintenance free – steel. The garage door is the largest and most frequently used part of a house. Electric door openers are designed for dependability and long service. Federal law requires that all new homes have a photo electric cell for protection in the event that the garage door is obstructed from closing.

Eastern Garage Door has a full sales and service crew. They will help you assess your needs, at your home or in their showroom, and offer appropriate solutions. Free estimates are available. They offer 24-hour emergency service.

Eastern Garage Door's showroom is located at 45 South Canal Street, Lawrence. Hours are Monday-Friday 7:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Telephone: 683-3158 or (800) 766-6012. 4/24/97

Spinning Wrenches

It's spring dealing time at Spinning Wrenches. Andover residents who come in before May 15 will receive a free oil change and filter – a $19.95 value – with any complete engine tune-up for their car or light truck. Call ahead for an appointment.

Whether it be routine maintenance or an engine overhaul, Spinning Wrenches owner Peter LeMieux will fix your car using the highest quality parts in a timely manner at a fair price.

Peter, a 20-year resident of Andover and a graduate of Andover High School, has spent the last 17 years working on cars, including nine years in the service department at Nassar Ford in Lawrence. He's owned and operated his own business for the last six years.

Peter excels in diagnostics and is equipped with the latest in diagnostic equipment for domestic vehicles. He specializes in Ford products, but works on all models both foreign and domestic.

"I love the area of diagnostics, especially electrical problems."

While Peter performs even the smallest of repairs, he also specializes in major repairs such as engine overhauls, transmission and rear-end overhauls. Spinning Wrenches carries a line of new radiators and heater cores, and because Peter gets them at dealer cost, he can pass the savings on to you.

Real Estate Evaluation

Housing market is hot, office/R&D space is sizzling

By Don Staruk

The residential real estate market in Andover is still "pretty strong," but research and development and office space is about as hot as it gets.

That's according to William Krajeski, Andover's chief assessor.

"Residential is still pretty strong with the last indicators I looked at," Mr. Krajeski said last week.

Through the end of 1996, the median sale price of a home in Andover was $273,000, up from $232,000 at the end of '94. The median sale price was $295,000 in the fourth quarter of '96, indicating prices were rising rather than falling or leveling off at year end. The median price has been increasing 6 to 9 percent the last couple of years, about a half of a percent a month, he said.

Mr. Krajeski does not see an increase in interest rates causing much, if any, slowdown in the market, at least not here in Andover.

"What we're seeing is an upward trend. I've got to believe that same sort of trend will continue," he said.

When banks get nervous, they usually start holding onto their money a bit tighter, but that isn't happening, he said. Banks are still lending money to developers and subdivisions are still being built.

Listings begin on page 6A.

"So the banks aren't being nervous," Mr. Krajeski said. "There's no doubt that will put a damper on things," but rates were very very low. Now they're coming up again, but an 8 or 8 1/2 percent is still not a bad rate, he said. "I don't see that really putting a big damper on the Andover market."

Affordable housing is not the primary market in this town, he said.

"You're not going to find a whole lot of bargains is what it comes down to."

Mr. Krajeski has been monitoring the Multiple Listing Service numbers for single-family homes and said they show that fewer than 10 percent of sales in town are under $200,000. There were 538 sales in Andover in 1996, and fewer than 50 of those were for less than $200,000, he said.

The number of sales has also been increasing for the last five or six years. There were 401 houses sold in town in 1990, compared to the 538 last year.

Little in stock

"It's a very strong market right now... all the way across the board," Mr. Krajeski said.

Condominiums and multi-family homes, two- and three-family units, are very hot, he said. Multi-family units were not selling or prices were very low a few years ago, "but that's changing as prices are coming up."

The condominium market has also been moving up steadily.

"Condos across the state have been one of the brightest spots in real estate," he said.

One of the problems is that there's very little stock on the market for sale, Mr. Krajeski said. Realtors are looking for listings. New construction may help.

"We have a lot of houses coming on line," he said.

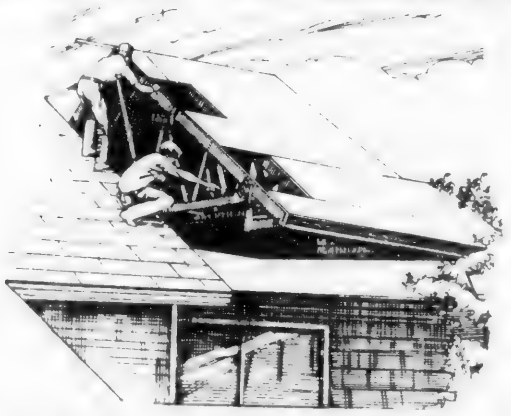

The town issued 95 building permits for new houses in town last year, and 29 already this year.

'I expect that we're going to see a continuous moderate increase in values until, (or unless), you see a drastic change in the national economy," Mr. Krajeski said.

He's said he's not an economist and doesn't pretend to be. But even in the event of a turn around in the economy, he doesn't see how that would have one of those buildings, probably Bank of Boston's Central Street location, will hit the market soon.

The former Daher's Shoes space at Olde Andover Village, the largest space available downtown in recent months, has been leased by an insurance company, according to Frank Mical, property manager. Mr. Mical was reluctant to elaborate.

There's no word yet on a buyer for the Krinsky property – the former junkyard – on Park Street.

Commercial/Industrial

The average rents for office/research and development property in West Andover increased by almost 23 percent from 1994 to the end of 1996, according to Mr. Krajeski.

In December 1994, the vacancy rate in that same space was 22.5 percent.

"That vacancy rate is 2.3 percent right now. That's a substantial difference," Mr. Krajeski said. "When sales of buildings stop, you know things are going well" because you are entering an economic phase that is worth a lot of money. "It used to be you could buy a building for a lot cheaper than you could rent it. That gap is not as wide now and leases are coming back."

Office space is going for about $20 a square foot. R&D space is getting $8 to $12.

Spaces that were vacant a few years ago – the Digital Equipment Corp. building on Minuteman Drive and the much of an effect on real estate here.

"Real estate is about location, location, location – and Andover's got all of that."

Land driving values up

Valuations overall went up about 12 percent on average from last year to this year. The cost of land rose "substantially," driving up values in some parts of town as much as 25 percent, according to the assessor.

The "Johnson Acres" neighborhood, off Elm Street, was one of those areas. Assessors were pleased recently when a roughly one-acre vacant lot in that neighborhood sold for $157,500, Mr. Krajeski said, because it seemed to justify the higher assessments. Generally, lot prices in that neighborhood rose from about $110,000 to between $130,000 and $140,000.

Downtown

The commercial downtown real estate market is "as strong as it was last year and the year before," Mr. Krajeski said.

First-floor vacancy is "unheard of," and second-floor office space is filling up. The sale of the former Fleet Bank building at 84 Main St. last year for $1.2 million is the exclamation point on how things are going downtown.

With the merger last year of BayBanks and Bank of Boston, it is likely

Abatements

The assessor's office received 427 applications for abatements this year, about 80 of which have been approved so far. There are still a few left to process, and Mr. Krajeski said a 25 percent approval rate is about the norm.

"But the 427 is very low for a revaluation year," Mr. Krajeski said.

This year was a revaluation year for Andover. The last time there was a revaluation, three years ago, there were more than 830 abatement requests.

Mr. Krajeski said there are some people who automatically file for an abatement every year, regardless of the valuation. Businesses are notorious for doing so, he said.

One of the stories that employees in his office like most is of the Boston lawyer who continued to send an application for abatement for an Andover property for three years after the property had been sold to a tax-exempt organization.

GCA building on Shattuck Road – are now occupied by PictureTel and Putnam Investments respectively. Marty Spagat, owner of Brickstone Properties and the former DEC building, is constructing a second building for PictureTel on Minuteman Drive at River Road, and has plans for several more buildings on 105 acres on the DEC land along Interstate 93 north of River Road.

Across the highway two new buildings are planned on New England Business Park Drive.

Woodland Park on Federal Street, in the Southeast corner of the I-93/River Road intersection, is also booming. An office building built on speculation last year is already occupied by Boston Technologies, and Eisai Merrimack Valley Laboratories just occupied its new building there and has room and plans for expanding. Plans for another 110,000-square-foot building on Federal Street are in front of the Conservation Commission now, and a proposal for another 160,000-square-feet of office and R&D space at the end of the street is in the works.

There are still a handful of lots available on Riverside Drive, Bulfinch Drive and Shattuck Road, but land in the area of River Road/I-93 is quickly running out, Mr. Krajeski said.

The Burtt Road extension, once built, could open up a good amount of industrial land for development in the Lowell Junction area, on the Wilmington line.

The strength of the market here should not be a surprise, Mr. Krajeski said.

"We're close to Boston. We offer fantastic amenities and facilities," he said.

Tax rate

Every three years the town performs a revaluation of all properties, and this was one such year for Andover.

The average 12-percent increase in real estate values in Andover actually resulted in a slight decrease in the tax rate this year, though the amount of taxes collected will still increase by about 5 percent. That's because the town's total assessment increased this year by more than 10 percent, from $2.8 billion to $3.1 billion.

Residential property is being taxed at $15.48 per $1,000 of assessed value this year, fiscal 1997, down from $16.41 last year. The tax rate for commercial and industrial properties is $22.57 per $1,000, down from $23.99.

Selectmen maintained the tax classification shift, assessing commercial and industrial properties at 132.5 percent of their value.

Last year commercial and industrial property owners paid about 30 percent of the tax burden, and residential owners paid 70 percent. That split will be about 29.6 percent to 70.4 percent this year.

Erectile dysfunction...

Today 10-20 million men in the United States suffer from impotence...needlessly!

Until recently, impotence was considered untreatable. Today, exciting progress has led to the development of newer and non-surgical treatment techniques. Currently, every man with impotence can be treated.

At Northeast Urologic Surgery, our physicians specialize in the diagnosis and treatment of impotence. We have successfully treated many men over the years and your care is covered by most private insurances and Medicare.

"BOLD"

Eagle-Tribune's Malden Mills coverage lauded

...ne Eagle-Tribune's coverage of the Malden Mills fire and the company's struggle to recover afterward won a Publick Occurrences Award ...

"This is a bold newspaper."
Contest judge

The New England Newspaper Association looked at the edition of The Eagle-Tribune that was published the day after the December 1995 fire and found "an extraordinary spot news report of a major tragedy that provided answers and guidance."

More than 100 stories abou... Malden Mills followed, constitutin... "an important public service that probably contributed to the well-being of thousands," they wrote.

The Publick Occurrences Award is given for courageous and independent journalistic achievement. It is named after the first newspaper published in America — and suppressed by the British royal governor in Boston in 1690 after a single issue.

Eagle-Tribune Editor Daniel J. Warner accepted the award at a luncheon in Boston along with merit awards for both The Eagle-Tribune's weekday and Sunday edition...

"This is a bold newspaper, willing to take a stand and loudly trumpet successes, while pointing out failures with vigor," judges wrote about copies of the daily paper they exa...ined.

"...e Eagle-T...rong connection to its community is reflected in every section," they wrote about the Sunday paper. "The Eagle-Tribune is aggressive and proud of it."

A picture is worth a thousand words, but it only took one word to describe The Eagle-Tribune, according to the judges of this year's New England Newspaper of the Year competition.

THANK YOU JUDGES.

Genetics Institute approved

Genetics broke ground last October for the newest addition at its Burtt Road facility in Lowell Junction, a 110,000-square-foot laboratory and office building, (at right). In February, planners approved a site plan special permit for another 41,280-square-foot addition to the main building. The additions will give the company about 500,000 square feet of office, laboratory and production space at the 53-acre site, about half of what the company hopes will become a 1 million-square-foot campus. Genetics expects to have 1,800 to 2,000 employees working at the Andover facility at full build out.
